LA STORY

The fashion writer Angela Buttolph, presenter of LivingTV's Hollywood Star Treatment series, has just returned to England from Los Angeles, where among the beautiful people, a disturbing fashion trend is emerging. 'They are all wearing those velour leisure suits that you normally see on OAPs in retirement homes,' she reports. 'Jennifer Lopez, Cameron Diaz, Jennifer Aniston, they all have them. In fact, I was in [hip clothing store] Fred Segal on Melrose Avenue, wondering whether to buy one, and I turned round to see Cameron Diaz in one. So obviously I had to buy one myself.' How did Cameron look? 'Rather spotty, I'm pleased to say.'

Buttolph reckons it is inevitable that the velour leisure suit will catch on here. 'A lot of trends come from LA,' she says. 'Low-cut flared jeans – that's a very Californian look, and wearing sunglasses the entire time obviously started there – although at least they have the excuse of it being sunny, which nobody seems to have explained to Meg Mathews.'

Buttolph admits that while she was filming the series in Los Angeles, her modest bust size became something of an in-joke on the production, diminutive busts being a rare sight in the land of the silicon implant. 'I was finally persuaded to see a boob-job doctor,' she says. 'And there was a woman there who let me feel hers. It put me right off. They felt like full water bombs. Men must totally freak out.'

She was more impressed with a new type of Californian tanning treatment. 'They call it Mystic Tan, and basically it's like going through a car wash. You literally get hosed down with fake tan. I'm a big, big fan.'

Hollywood Star Treatment, LivingTV, Fridays from 1st, 8.30pm

TRAVELLING MAN

Kevin Greening, a presenter for Travel Bug, part of Travel Channel's Head for the Med season of programming, has a good answer when I invite him to pick his best-ever holiday. 'It's like comparing strawberries with anchovies,' he says. 'I once had a fantastic holiday driving through California and Nevada, but also a wonderfully relaxing holiday in a villa in Tuscany, where I managed to unwind for the first and perhaps only time in my life.' Greening, 38, is the active sort, who has bungee-jumped, parachuted, water-skied and scuba-dived. 'Despite all the exotic places I've visited, though, I've only ever scuba-dived in freezing English water, at Stoney Cove in Leicestershire, which for all its submerged army surplus wreckage, is not exactly the Maldives.' He urges me to underline the strengths of Travel Channel. 'Unlike some travel programmes on terrestrial television, we say it as we see it,' he says. 'And we don't see it until we get there. There are some shows, which we won't mention by name, which fly in the researchers a month in advance, then the presenter is parachuted in, reads a script and leaves.' Nonetheless, did he ever think, while he was studying chemical engineering at Cambridge University, that one day he would be paid for recommending holiday destinations? 'Er, no. In fact, my degree has only come in useful once, when I was working at a radio station in Southampton and a chemical plant in Poole caught fire. The duty news editor wanted to know whether we could describe the chemicals as explosive. So I read the 40-syllable name of one of the chemicals and told him he could. That was quite satisfying.'

Head for the Med, Travel Channel, daily from 6.00pm

A fine Fellows

This is Winter Olympics month, and British Eurosport commentator Nick Fellows reckons that at Salt Lake City, Britain has its best chance of a medal for more than three decades. 'Our slalom skier Alain Baxter is ranked 11th in the world,' he tells me, 'the highest ever position for a British skier. And as each nation is only allowed four entrants, I'd say his chances of winning a medal are very high.' Moreover, the Tiger Woods and Lennox Lewis of slalom, Alberto Tomba of Italy, has now retired. 'Yeah, that changes things. I reckon that any one of about 15 skiers could win it.'

Fellows knows whereof he speaks, having raced on the British skiing team for some 12 years. 'Like all failed sportsmen I ended up in the media,' he says, self-deprecatingly, adding that he is even more optimistic for the hopes of our top snowboarder, Lesley McKenna. 'She finished last season brilliantly – at number three in the world, so she could do very well. For years we figured that we weren't going to produce any Olympic champions in these events, but that has changed. Everyone involved with the winter sports in this country is on the edge of their seats.'

Putting on the style

The host of Golf Clubs with Tim Brooke-Taylor, the popular series running on Discovery Home & Leisure, has a highly respectable handicap of 12.3. 'It's good enough to hold my head up,' he says, which I cleverly point out is the last thing you are supposed to do during the golf swing. For the hugely engaging Brooke-Taylor, making the series has been a joy. 'I had always wanted to play Ballybunnion in Ireland,' he tells me, 'and the series took me there. I wasn't disappointed. And I loved playing with the Irish, they have such lovely turns of phrase. When you are left with a tiny putt it is customary to say "Do you mind if I knock this in?" but over there they say, "Shall I miss it quickly?"'

Brooke-Taylor's favourite course is San Lorenzo in Portugal: 'Every time I come off I think, "Now I know what to do next time"'. But his golfing ambition is to play at the Augusta National, exclusive home of the US Masters tournament, and famous for its lightning-fast greens. 'I would love to have a go at those greens,' he says. 'I think it was Ian Woosnam who said it was like putting on a car bonnet, which is such a wonderful image.'

A man even more eloquent than Woosnam on the subject of golf, however, was PG Wodehouse. In a recent radio programme about comedy and golf, Brooke-Taylor was able to quote some of the great man's immortal lines, several of which perhaps only fellow golfers will truly understand, such as: 'He had the smile of a man who had broken 100 for the first time'. I tell Brooke-Taylor that PG Wodehouse's The Golf Omnibus is my favourite book in all the world. He evidently approves. 'The authors I always take on holiday are PG Wodehouse and Raymond Chandler,' he says. 'I love their descriptive writing, and oddly enough they went to the same school. Around the same time, too. I love to think of an inspirational English teacher there, saying "Boys, boys, just describe".'

Jenny's journey

Jenny Agutter's CV includes Child's Play 2 with Chucky the satanic doll, yet it is The Railway Children with Bernard Cribbins that comes to mind when we think of her, even though it's 30-odd years since she whisked off that red petticoat and waved it at a train. Does she mind?

'I'd rather be remembered for that than some ghastly piece of work that one wasn't so proud of,' she says, very reasonably. I ask her to recall the making of the film, which was also the making of her. The director Peter Hall liked her performance so much that he cast her to play Miranda in The Tempest, at the National Theatre. And the fee came in extremely handy. 'I can't remember exactly how much I was paid, but it added up to a goodly part of the flat I bought in London's Holland Park, and that, I remember, cost me £10,000.'

She recalls Lionel Jeffries, who directed The Railway Children, being very kind. 'But at the same time he controlled everything like a Victorian father. Sally Thomsett [who played the middle railway child] and I went out dancing one night – we must have found the only nightspot in Ilkley – and Lionel was waiting for us in the hotel lobby when we got back. I was 17 and felt very grown-up, but when shots went particularly well he used to give us half a crown. It made us feel like children, which of course was exactly his intention.'

UPFRONT

Our monthly round-up of viewing highlights

Buffy the Vampire Slayer
Fans of Buffy the Vampire Slayer know to expect the unexpected, but this month sees an episode like nothing else with the premiere of Once More, with Feeling. It's show time in Sunnydale as Buffy and the gang feature in an all-singing, all-dancing, Rodgers and Hammerstein-style episode. The songs were all penned by Buffy creator Joss Whedon in an episode where spontaneous singing can lead to spontaneous combustion. Tune in and sing along with Buffy.
Sky One, Thursday 14th, 8.00pm

Blood Ties
A new seven-part series explores the ties that bind above everything else – blood ties. The first episode focuses on the children of Judy Garland and how the star's fame and controversial lifestyle affected the lives of Lorna and Joey Luft and her famous daughter Liza Minnelli. Other family ties explored in the series include the Biggs, the Sellers, the Yoraths and the Roddicks.
Discovery, from Wednesday 6th, 9.00pm

Most Expensive Videos Ever Made weekend
Eighties popsters Duran Duran were known for making the world's most ludicrously expensive video clips, but these days, their over-the-top budgets look like pocket money. MTV will count down the most expensive videos ever made, featuring behind-the-scenes gossip and rumours from the set. Among the videos featured in the weekend are Jamiroquai's Deeper Underground and Madonna's notoriously expensive Express Yourself video.
MTV, Saturday 23rd and Sunday 24th

Anti-Valentine's Day
If you're sick to death of all the hearts and flowers this Valentine's Day, tune into UK Horizons to escape. Anti-Valentine's Day features an evening's viewing guaranteed to put you off love for life. The line-up includes Revenge, exploring the lengths lovelorn people will go to exact retribution on former lovers, and Mistresses, looking at the role of 'other women'. Perfect viewing for the bitter and single.
UK Horizons, Thursday 14th, from 9.00pm

ER
Apologies to ER fans. The new, eighth series is on E4 (Thursdays, 9.30pm) and not Sky One, as printed in last month's Cable Guide.

IN PRODUCTION

The spy's the limit

Lessons in surveillance, tailing, even seduction techniques, are all on the timetable for a new series out this spring.
Words: Kylie Northover

Aspiring James Bonds will get the chance to learn the finer skills of the art of espionage in the spring, when Bravo screens a new 15-part series, Spy School.

As well as profiles of history's most famous spies and interviews with experts, the series aims to teach viewers how to be a spy using genuine training techniques.

Executive producer Sam Cash, a self-confessed espionage buff, says he's always wanted to make a programme about the realities of spying.

'Shows about spying are usually the mythical idea of the men in trench coats sitting behind newspapers with eyeholes cut out,' he explains. 'Spy School is a mixture of information and entertainment, but we will show you everything you need to be a successful spy.'

By the end of the series, dedicated viewers should know how to lose someone if you're being tailed, surveillance and counter-surveillance and even how to beat a lie detector. 'We even teach 'sexpionage', whereby spies must seduce someone, Mata Hari-style; escape and evasion techniques, including evasive driving, and 50 places to hide a secret message on your body,' says Cash.

Spy School will be presented by Lorna Wilson and Julian Rolfe, acting as rookie spies. 'They will go through some serious spy training, and we'll be putting them in all sorts of situations designed to test them. For example, one of the MI6 training tests is to go into a pub and within one hour, find out the name, telephone number and passport number of someone in the pub,' Cash explains. 'Our rookie spies actually did quite well on that one!'

Sam himself, though, says he's sticking to his present job, even though he's now an expert in espionage.

'I've always been obsessed with spies, but I don't think I'd ever be able to be one myself – I wouldn't be able to keep my mouth shut about it!'

WATCH OUT!

A sneak preview of what's coming up on cable

THE WITCH REPORT

The end of the last series of Charmed saw the sad death of Prue (Shannen Doherty) and the breakdown of the Power of Three. But, hey, in the world of the supernatural, anything can happen. And sure enough, in the new, fourth, series (on LivingTV next month), Piper (Holly Marie Combs) and Phoebe (Alyssa Milano) meet the sister, Paige (Rose McGowan, pictured), they knew nothing about.

DINO STORY

Disney Channel comes up trumps again in March, with the British TV premiere of Disney's Dinosaur. Aladar, the orphaned dinosaur, brought up by a group of lemurs, is forced to escape his home with his adoptive family when a devastating meteorite shower puts their lives in danger. Plenty of impressive computer-generated effects and moving moments to look forward to.

OFFICE POLITICS

For political drama that delivers a perfectly blended mix of poignancy, humour and dramatic tension, The West Wing has proved unbeatable. Fans of the multi-award winning series set inside the White House will be pleased to know that the new, third series is set to premiere on E4 this summer. And the burning question is whether President Bartlet (Martin Sheen) will run for re-election.

A law unto herself

Far from tiring of her famous alter ego, Calista Flockhart admits that, as the fifth series of Ally McBeal starts, the whimsical lawyer has become part of her psyche. Interview: Lawrie Masterson

SO, AFTER FIVE YEARS as the world's most famous eccentric, unlucky-in-love lawyer, just how is Ally McBeal doing? 'I've always thought Ally was infantile, immature and crazy. I think she still is,' says Calista Flockhart, the actress who brings the character to life.

'But it's a fantasy show. It's not based in any kind of reality, so she can go as far as she wants. It's all in the scope of having fun, so I don't take it too seriously. I just try to go with it.'

And perhaps that's just as well. With her more recent full-time role as mother to her adopted baby boy, Liam, taking up her time off set, Flockhart has found herself contending with sleepless nights.

'Fortunately my work schedule is a lot lighter than it used to be and I take Liam to work with me,' she says.

'I love him more than anything in the world, but he's just been ill and I've been up for four nights in a row rocking him, so I'm a little loopy and sleep-deprived.'

Though Ally McBeal creator David E Kelley keeps Flockhart on her toes with unpredictable twists and turns in her character's life, the 37-year-old actress says that somewhere in her head there is now a compartment where Ally lives.

'This might sound strange,' she admits, 'but I can click right into Ally now. When I show up for work I don't have to think too much any more. It's automatic.

'I know the character so well that it's kind of contained. In the first year I had to search for the character and how she would feel, but now it just kind of rolls out of me. I don't have to think about it too much.'

With Ally's most recent love interest, attorney Larry Paul (played by Robert Downey Jr), hastily written out of the series following Downey's latest brushes with US authorities, one focus of the new season will be to see if a new special someone will enter her life.

While Kelley and Flockhart both remain non-committal about his identity, the favoured candidate is new attorney Glenn Foy, played by James Marsden.

The whole topic seems to vex Flockhart somewhat.

'I am so sick of boys,' she says, emphatically. 'David will probably hate me for saying this, but I think it would be nice if she started getting politically active or just did something that had nothing to do with having a boyfriend.'

She remains in touch and 'good friends' with the troubled Downey, who she says is doing well.

'I really miss Robert,' she says of her co-star. 'We had a great time and that was a fun relationship for Ally because it had some longevity, some depth to it. I think we were going to have a wedding episode, but then who knows what would have happened?

'I was very disturbed and saddened by what happened and yet anybody who's ever worked with somebody who is doing drugs knows all the difficulties it can present, so it was a double-edged sword. I think the best thing that happened was that he went and got help.'

Flockhart says she is always 'affected tremendously' by the cast changes that are routine for any long-running series. 'I am always sad when somebody leaves. You form such a strong bond with people and they become your friends, so it's always hard to say goodbye.

'But on the other hand it's exciting to have new cast members come in because it just makes things a bit fresh. The chemistry and the dynamics change and that's always interesting. It changes the tenor of the show automatically and each year has seemed to start out with a different energy.'

'I can click right into Ally now. When I show up for work I don't have to think too much any more. It's automatic'

NEW SERIES

Ally McBeal

E4, Tuesdays from 12th, 9.00pm

Taking the stand

Joining the cast of Ally McBeal was a daunting prospect for big-screen star James Marsden. But it has all turned out just fine, he tells Lawrie Masterson

JAMES MARSDEN, BEST KNOWN, until now, as Cyclops in the hit movie X-Men (see our feature on page 38), joins the new season of Ally McBeal as hot-shot young attorney Glenn Foy. 'He's just out of Boston Law School, very charismatic, ambitious and really on the fast track,' 28-year-old Marsden says.

And there's more than a hint that if he ever works through his relationship with another of the new series regulars, his ex-girlfriend and fellow attorney Jenny Shaw (played by Julianne Nicholson), then he just might become a new love interest for Ally herself.

'Who knows?' Marsden says. 'The way David [series creator David E Kelley] works is that he said to me, "I don't really know exactly where the character is going," so if you ask me where he's going to be at the end of the season I'd be lying if I told you I knew.

'David ends up writing towards the actors' strengths and characters, maybe that gives him extra creative license to play with the destiny of my character.'

Despite his success in X-Men – he's signed for the sequel, expected to be produced some time this year and released in 2003 – Marsden admits to a nervous start on Ally.

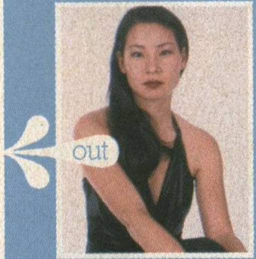
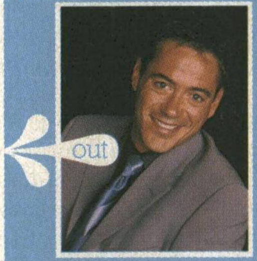
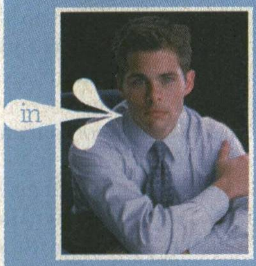
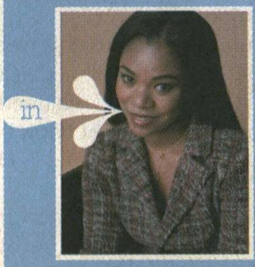
'You just hope your adapting skills are going to kick in and you're going to be able to fit in with this family that has been associated with each other and known how each other works for five years now,' he says. 'On the other hand, five years means this machine runs very smoothly. It took me only about a week to settle in. I wasn't nervous after that.'

Courting change









IT'S A CASE OF out with the old and in with the new in series five of Ally McBeal. Sooner than you can say 'case dismissed', a host of well-loved characters has been sentenced to life without Ally.

Lucy Liu, now concentrating on her film career, will only appear as Ling Woo in the first four episodes of the new season. And Long-standing cast member Lisa Nicole Carson, who's played Ally's flatmate, Renée, since series one, is unlikely to reappear in the show again, having reportedly disappointed producers with her erratic behaviour in the past (her character in ER has been killed off completely). Even Peter MacNicol is adjourning his time as nose-whistling legal supremo John Cage and features in only the first seven episodes of season five.

Other departures include Taye Diggs (Jackson Duper), James LeGros (Mark Albert) and Robert Downey Jr's character (Larry Paul).

But on the plus side, there are plenty of fresh faces to look forward to. James Marsden (Glenn Foy), Julianne Nicholson (Jenny Shaw), Josh Hopkins (Raymond Milbury) and Regina Hall (Corretta Lipp) are the new series regulars. Guest appearances come from the likes of Mariah Carey, Elton John and Tom Berenger, while Jacqueline Bisset and Dame Edna Everage appear in recurring roles. And, ensuring some competition for Ally's affections, rocker Jon Bon Jovi joins the cast for a nine-episode stint.

Looks like resident singer Vonda Shepard need not worry – there's still plenty of talent available for the usual impromptu karaoke and choreographed dancing down at the local bar.

Changing faces, from top to bottom: Dame Edna Everage with Peter MacNicol; Lucy Liu; Lisa Nicole Carson; Robert Downey Jr; Josh Hopkins; James Marsden; Regina Hall

From George and Mildred to Homer and Marge, Brian Viner celebrates our favourite TV couples in a Valentine's Day homage

AS HILDA OGDEN ONCE said to her feckless husband, in the dingy front room of number 13 Coronation Street, with the flying ducks 'muriel' in the background, 'We'd ruin another couple, Stanley'.

In other words, Stan and Hilda were meant for each other and nobody else. And the same is true of Marge and Homer Simpson, Jim and Barbara Royle, Alf and Else Garnett, Tony and Carmela Soprano, Fred and Wilma Flintstone, Jack and Vera Duckworth, Jerry and Margo Leadbetter, George and Mildred Roper, Margaret and Victor Meldrew, Sybil and Basil Fawlty, and all those other TV couples whose endless bickering can never altogether eclipse – except perhaps in the case of the Fawltys – their abiding love and dependency.

You may know actual couples of whom the same is true. I know I do. But in real life, the expression that two people were made for each other is just that – an expression. On television, we know it to be literally true. Like Adam and Eve, Marge and Homer were created as a couple, their lives forever intertwined, for better or – invariably – for worse.

There is an immortality about TV couples that is unattainable in real life. In life, all couples are eventually fractured by death, separation or divorce. On telly, by contrast, marriages are indestructible. Even when one spouse dies, like Alf Roberts in Coronation Street, or when they break up, like Angie and Den Watts in EastEnders, the marriage lives on in 15-year-old repeats on UK Gold and Granada Plus. Thanks to cable channels, Jim and Barbara Royle are destined to sit in their front room watching Antiques Roadshow until they are antiques themselves.

There is something rather romantic about this notion of everlasting marriage, so, in the spirit of romance, with Valentine's Day bearing down on us, let us celebrate TV coupledom – if not TV coupling, which is a different matter.

My own favourites from a long, long list are Homer and Marge, Stan and Hilda, Sybil and Basil, Jim and Barbara, and Tony and Carmela – the bickerers, that is, whose relationships seem so much more plausible than the saccharine marriages of Cliff and Clair Huxtable of The Cosby Show, or Ma and Pop Larkin in The Darling Buds of May, or John and Olivia Walton of The Waltons.

I also have a permanent soft spot for the couples in Dallas, principally JR and Sue Ellen Ewing, but also Pam and Bobby, whose union is perhaps the most romantic in the history of television, and certainly the most remarkable, for not even Bobby's emphatic death in a hit-and-run accident was quite enough to render Pam a widow; just as she was coming to terms with never seeing him again, up he popped one morning, soaping himself in the shower.

Pam and Bobby (beautiful Victoria Principal and hunky Patrick Duffy) were the physical antitheses of most of my favourite TV couples. It's not quite accurate to say that folk wouldn't look twice if they passed Marge Simpson in the street – jaws would dislocate in astonishment at the sight of that blue beehive – but we do know that the love

Homer and Marge have for each other is based on more than physical attraction. At least, we hope it is.

Of course, in telly, as in life, some couples stay together more out of habit than love. This is certainly the category that embraces the Fawltys. On the other hand, we know from The Psychiatrist episode that Sybil and Basil are, perhaps surprisingly, fairly active between the sheets. 'We knew it must be difficult; my wife didn't see how you could manage it at all,' says Dr Abbott, the psychiatrist, to Basil. Dr Abbott is referring to the Fawltys' holidays, but Basil, thinking he is talking about their sex life, replies indignantly, 'Well, as you've asked, two or three times a week, actually'.

Two or three times a week? It really doesn't bear thinking about, and thankfully we don't often have to. As a rule, TV couples are distanced from their sex lives – indeed, their lives are overwhelmingly sexless (mind you, I always rather envied Tom in The Good Life, reckoning along with countless other teenage boys of my generation that it would be well worth mucking out a goat shed if the reward was getting to slap his screen wife Felicity Kendal's bottom).

Speaking of which, there are other TV couples seemingly destined never even to reach the bottom-slapping stage, as much as one or other might like to. These chaste couples, the will-they-won't-they? brigade, range from Robin Tripp and Chrissy Plummer in Man about the House to Dana Scully and Fox Mulder of The X-Files.

Until recently, Niles Crane's passion for Daphne Moon in Frasier seemed likely to remain unrequited, too. In fact, I don't know about you, but I feel faintly betrayed by Niles and Daphne's blossoming relationship. The will-they-won't-they? saga is forever ruined when they do. It's better to suspect that, despite endless innuendo, they never will, like Nora Batty and Compo in Last of the Summer Wine.

Whatever, the TV couple is a venerable institution, very nearly as old as television itself. In America, The Honeymooners was born as part of The Jackie Gleason Show (rather as The Simpsons later sprang from The Tracey Ullman Show) in 1951, the crabby relationship between Ralph and Alice Kramden (Gleason and Audrey Meadows) later becoming the inspiration for The Flintstones.

And in Britain, the first televised soap was launched in 1954. The Grove Family, named after the BBC's Lime Grove Studios, rapidly acquired a devoted following. Numerous viewers wrote in to Bob Grove, a jobbing builder, asking for estimates, and to his wife Gladys, offering slimming tips. The serial lasted only three years, but in 1991, as part of the BBC's Lime Grove commemorations, modern-day actors recreated extracts of the original scripts. Bob was played by Leslie Grantham, and Gladys by Sue Johnston. That's Dirty Den and Barbara Royle to you and me. Now there's an odd couple. cg

FOREVER FRIENDS

Eight years old and six individual careers made, surely Friends has had its day? Not so. Great new storylines, a host of well-chosen guest stars and sticking to the winning formula see the hit sitcom come out on top yet again, reports Fiona Morrow

Friends

ALTHOUGH IT REMAINS ONE of the most popular shows on television, Friends has been suffering a steady decline in the all-important US Nielsen ratings of late. Before series eight hit American TV screens, there was much speculation whether this would be its last.

It wasn't just the notoriously high wage demands from the cast's six principals that threatened its future (with rerun and worldwide sales royalties added in, each is estimated to be pulling in around $900,000 an episode). No, there were more fundamental concerns.

'After producing over 450 different stories it's just really hard to find one we haven't done before,' explains co-creator and producer Marta Kauffman. David Crane, the other half of the creative partnership, agrees: 'We are constantly saying "Didn't we do that in the third season?" or "I'm sure we did something in the second season that felt just like this." The process of coming up with stories just becomes harder because you've exhausted so many different areas.'

It may be getting tougher to pull it off but it seems that Kauffman and Crane have done it again: 'The decision to have Rachel become pregnant has really energised the show and given us some exciting new directions,' smiles Crane, perhaps understandably relieved.

> 'We were lucky enough in casting to find six brilliant comedic actors – it's lightning in a bottle'

Having concentrated on the Monica/Chandler relationship for series seven, Crane and Kauffman have wisely decided to return to the show's core relationship – the on-again, off-again love affair between Rachel and Ross. Throw in a clutch of big name guest appearances – actress and Mrs Sting, Trudie Styler, Sean Penn as the fiancé of Phoebe's twin sister and, most headline-grabbing of all, Brad Pitt – and Friends is back on a winning streak.

Crane and Kauffman know that it pays to be cheeky and have taken the opportunity to have as much fun with Pitt's character as possible: he plays Monica's high-school friend – the only kid fatter than she was – who couldn't stand the sight of Rachel; the US audience has been switching back on in droves.

Having the likes of Pitt and Penn to draw upon is pretty impressive for a TV show, but, according to Crane, great as the guests may be, the success of Friends is down to making the permanent cast happy. 'The bottom line is that you don't see that many guest stars on Friends,' he insists. 'Because we have to service six principals, the room for big guest star parts is much less than a lot of other shows.'

There are no plans to mess with the basic formula: 'Friends is the six of them. Friends isn't the six of them plus the new seventh friend,' says Kauffman. 'In 22 minutes, to give six principals enough material is really hard,' continues Crane. 'That's one of the biggest challenges of the show. And we were lucky enough in casting it to find six brilliant comedic actors – it's lightning in a bottle. It's a serious problem when we bring in a big guest star – we want to make sure that Bruce Willis has enough comic material – now we have seven mouths to feed. As talented and wonderful as our guest stars are, if I have a choice between who's going to get more jokes this week, I'm going to go for the six stars.'

If it's tricky keeping Friends funny and fresh, there are compensations to such a long-running show: 'We've learned to do it – especially on stage – in a shorter period of time,' explains Kauffman. After a while you get into a rhythm and there's a run-through by a set time, and you can get it up on its feet by a certain time ...' Laughing, Crane interrupts: 'You can certainly call it a well-oiled machine!' cg

TALK OF THE TOWN

With a new film out – Rock Star – and her famous marriage to Brad Pitt, everyone wants to talk to Jennifer Aniston

How Friends-like are most of the scripts that are sent to you?
You know, none of them are Friends, really. I mean, there are similarities, in that it's a spoiled rich girl looking for love. That's pretty much the formula for romantic comedies. There is only a certain amount of ways that you can tell a love story and it's just a matter of finding a writer who will make it interesting.

Can you talk about how casting directors and film-makers have a lack of imagination sometimes. How do you overcome that?
They do and you have to go in and prove it; audition for them. I don't ever have an ego about auditioning, and I don't expect someone to think that I can do something that they haven't seen me do yet. I don't know if I can do it. You just have to prove it to them.

When do you stop having to audition for roles?
I don't know, that time hasn't come yet. Eventually, but I mean, maybe never. There are stories still today about actresses that go in and read, you know. Sometimes directors really need to see you, and then, of course, you get up into that tier of people like Julia Roberts, and I don't think that she has to do anything, but say 'yes' or 'no'. That really is just a different place.

With the finale of Friends, the cliffhanger, did you know that it was going to cause all the controversy?
No, we didn't know. I mean, we were handed the script, the pages ... we shot a phoney ending and then, at two in the morning after they had unloaded the audience, they handed us all the pages for what the finale was. They didn't trust anyone to truthfully not give it away. Everyone, the cast and crew, had to sign confidentiality agreements and we get the script and I'm like, 'Oh my gosh, I'm pregnant – wow,' and then, the crew is coming up and congratulating me, and I was saying, 'I swear to God, guys, I'm not pregnant,' and they're all saying, 'Right, sure you're not,' and from then on, all the hoopla happened. It was funny though, it made me laugh and I got a lot of free desserts.

How is your attitude going into this season?
'I'm psyched about it. I always love going back to that job. I mean, I love everyone there, the writers keep it interesting, and, still, everyone is open and we're collaborative. It's just a good job and I love it.'

Do you ever watch old reruns of Friends?
I know it's out there, and I'm sorry for the saturation. Yeah, I see it every now and then.

Is it like watching home movies for you, the first couple of seasons?
Yeah, it's actually hilarious and hysterical. I love the show, and I mean, that's really corny, but we're flipping through [the TV channels] and it's a rerun and we laugh. It's fun.

For your new film, Rock Star, did you do any research like co-star Mark Wahlberg by going to rock shows ?
No, I can't say that I joined the craziness. I mean, I have seen a couple of shows in my life, but I didn't do the rock scene too much. It kind of scares me [LAUGHS], truthfully.

Do you have a favourite rock band that you like or hung out with?
I never hung out with them, I tell you, but I ... I don't have a favourite. I mean, I love so many different kinds of bands, and different kinds of music. Aerosmith has always been a favourite, Led Zeppelin has always been a favourite, Radiohead is a favourite. Gosh, you know, there are a lot.

What was working with Mark like?
Oh, it was amazing and I loved him. First of all, he's so talented and makes such an amazingly seamless transition from character to character – he's just good at what he does. He is that character. He just put on those leather pants and there was no Marky Mark anywhere to be seen.

Playing a rock star's girlfriend, did you have a sense of slipping into the background and can you identify with that in your own life, being married to Brad Pitt?
I think that it depends on the individual and I think that it depends on the situation. I have absolutely seen that, I know of that happening in people's lives where one becomes very famous and, you know, the wife or the husband doesn't fit in the picture anymore. But there are also people that can handle it and see what it is and take it for what it is, which is just a big old fun game that's not real, and it's, you know, all for the moment. I mean, hopefully, you have a career that will last a long time and you know why you're there and the work is important, but to get caught up in that kind of fame and the glamour is all pretty silly.

As the second series of Dark Angel hits our screens, Jennifer Blanc, who plays heroine Max's friend, Kendra, gives the lowdown on her role and reveals what it's really like working with Terminator director James Cameron

THE NEW AVENGERS

Interview:
Sally O'Shaughnessy

FANS OF JAMES CAMERON'S bleak apocalyptic visions of the future will not have been disappointed with his first foray into television, Fox's teen sci-fi series Dark Angel. With shades of Terminator heroine Sarah Connor, Cameron's Dark Angel is a bruised protagonist, pursued and fighting back in a devastated world.

For those uninitiated to the noiresque pleasures of the series, now into its second season on Sky One, it's set in the US, circa 2019. The country has been laid waste by an electromagnetic shockwave unleashed by nuclear terrorists in 2009. Enter Max (Jessica Alba), a 19-year-old genetically engineered warrior who escaped from the company that made her when she was nine and now ekes out a living as a Seattle bicycle courier, looking for the other kids with whom she fled and on the run from her evil creators.

Fox's most successful sci-fi series since The X-Files, Dark Angel's appeal has much to do with its contemporary psychology, pounding hip-hop soundtrack and sassy female leads. Where Terminator's Sarah Connor was alone in her endeavours, Max is supported by a group of streetwise girlfriends.

For New York-born Jennifer Blanc (main picture), Max's former flatmate, Kendra, such characterisation enticed her to the series. 'They sent me the script,' she enthuses, 'and I thought, I have to be part of this, it's brilliant.'

Playing Kendra was a far cry from Blanc's previous starring roles in TV series such as The Mommies and Party of Five. 'I think I brought a lot of myself to Kendra, I really made her like me,' she explains. 'Kendra's grungy but she's a light part of Dark Angel. She meets Max because they're both looking for somewhere to squat and they end up sharing. Kendra just thinks Max is this cool, tough chick. Kendra's obsessed with meeting guys and they're a very odd couple.'

Dark Angel's complex, multi-layered storyline, thrilling effects and glossy production require hard graft from the show's cast and crew. Is Cameron, notorious for his dictatorial ways, a hard taskmaster? 'He's very hands on,' Blanc admits. 'He'll get in and do things himself. If he doesn't like a script, all of a sudden we'll be waiting because he's re-writing it. He has the final say on the last edit. It's his baby.'

Blanc has seen a lighter side to Cameron. Formerly engaged to Michael Biehn (another Cameron protégé, he played Sarah Connor's protector in Terminator), Blanc broke up with Biehn during filming. 'I remember once I was sitting downstairs talking to a friend about splitting up with Michael. He [Cameron] stopped what he was doing and we just started talking. He even said, "Have we given you a day off?"'

As for Blanc's role in Dark Angel, she'd love to see Kendra developing a few more sinister qualities. 'I love playing crazy, evil girls. I'm good at it,' she laughs. Now Kendra has gone off to live with the loathsome cop, there may be some scope for it in the new series. 'There's talk, but we never know until the last minute. She's thus far been Max's friend.'

Whether Blanc's ambitions will be realised in the forthcoming series remains to be seen, but elsewhere they may well be. Following the movie The Expendables, in which she played a kindergarten teacher who likes to blow things up, there's a role in Bar Hop, an independent movie set in the New York bar scene, 'Like Last Days of Disco, but now,' says Blanc. There's even an album in progress,' which she describes as, 'very poppy, very female emotional.'

LAUGHTER therapy

Already a familiar face from numerous big-screen appearances, John C McGinley couldn't wait to dial 911 and prescribe some sharp comic medicine in Scrubs. Interview: Jenny Eden

WHEN THE SCRIPT LANDED for Scrubs, there was such a buzz about the US's newest comedy that even the most experienced actors were willing to audition their socks off to get a part.

Set in a busy hospital, it's a mix of a comedy ER in the spirit of battle-weary *M*A*S*H* with a pinch of Ally McBeal fantasy thrown in. The action centres around petrified new intern JD, played by Zach Braff, as he puts his years of medical training into practice on live patients. But the plum role is Dr Perry Cox, the young doctors' mentor with the scalpel sharp put-downs.

It took respected movie actor John C McGinley, star of films ranging from The Animal to Platoon and from Wall Street to The Rock, five auditions to secure the part for himself.

'There were a lot of guys in town who wanted to play this role,' he says. 'Most of the time I don't have to audition, but I really wanted this one. And I saw a lot of other actors there who I assume don't normally go for auditions.

'The last job I wanted this badly was The Rock. I knew Sean Connery and Ed Harris but I still had to audition and it was so nerve-racking waiting to find out if I'd got it. I haven't felt like that about a part since then, until Scrubs.'

His gut instinct about Scrubs seems to have paid off already – the series quickly became the number one new sitcom in the US and has been picked up by the studios for an extended run.

For McGinley, 42, it cements his reputation as a comic actor, which started, bizarrely, with Oliver Stone's gritty war epic Platoon. And it was luck that got him his first job with Stone.

He was understudying American actor John Turturro in an off-Broadway play, and the night Stone's talent scout came to see Turturro in action was the night McGinley got to go on stage.

'Oliver is one of the great filmmakers and I'm lucky because I've gone into battle with him six times now. He let me be a kind of comic aside in a bunch of his films, but after Platoon I started flirting on the periphery of comedy.

'But the first two comedy films I did flopped. I was in Wagons East [co-star John Candy died during filming], then I was in a musical called Car 54 Where Are You?, but they took out all the musical numbers and released it on the weekend of the LA earthquakes. So there were mitigating circumstances,' he says, laughing.

'Now, after The Animal, suddenly I'm Mr Comedy and all these kids are recognising me.'

But, for McGinley, the best part about his role in Scrubs is that he gets to work and live in Los Angeles, so he can spend time with his four-year-old son Max, who was born with Down's Syndrome. And although McGinley and his wife, Lauren Lambert, have split up, they still work together to care for their son.

'Where Max is concerned we both leave our baggage at the door,' he says. 'We are great parents, but not so great partners.'

Straight after the interview McGinley is heading off for some quality 'Max time'.

'I'm picking him up from pre-school, then we're doing his physical therapies – gymnastics then speech – and I'm dropping him off at his mother's house.'

Very much the proud parent, he admits: 'It is hard work but it's paying off and he's turning into a precious, beautiful little boy. I look at it that he hit speed bumps after the starting blocks but now he's getting moving.

'It's a real thrill seeing him progress and he's the thing I'm proudest of in my life – nothing else comes close.'

Ironically, the medical work McGinley became immersed in after Max was born and was seriously ill proved a good preparation for his role in Scrubs.

'Max spent the first two months of his life in neonatal care with us with him and we saw an awful lot of doctors. I learned a lot about them.

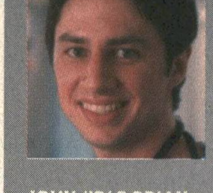
'They are heroes. But you realise they can't save the world, they can only treat people.

'When they said, "Your son has Down's Syndrome", they couldn't stop it happening to Max, but they could treat him.'

And it's that kind of realism that is behind Dr Cox's acidic approach to his work and his latest batch of wide-eyed raw recruits.

McGinley says: 'He teaches with a spoonful of dirt, then a cupful of sugar, and that's a pretty rich mix to play.'

MEET THE STAFF AT SACRED HEART HOSPITAL...



JOHN 'JD' DORIAN
✚ ZACH BRAFF

He's the wide-eyed, handsome intern with three years of medical school under his belt, but with lots to learn and a self-deprecating manner. Much of the action is seen through JD's eyes and viewers can get right inside his head as they hear his humorous stream of consciousness. 'The audience is privy to all my thoughts and neuroses,' says Braff, who popped up as Woody Allen and Diane Keaton's son in Allen's 1993 hit Manhattan Murder Mystery.

ELLIOT REID
✚ SARAH CHALKE

Elliot is an intern who arrived at Sacred Heart Hospital with driving ambition, a strong competitive streak and the ability to speak her mind, masking the doubt she has over her abilities. Her bedside manner also leaves much to be desired. 'She's kind of a smarty pants,' says Chalke. Unsurprisingly, she created a few initial heart palpitations among her male colleagues. You might recognise Chalke from her role as Becky in Roseanne.

CHRIS TURK
✚ DONALD FAISON

Confident Turk, a fellow intern working on surgical, rather than medical, rotation, is JD's best friend and flatmate. His cocky demeanour belies the terror he feels at his new task. Romance-wise, Turk's eyes soon wander in nurse Carla's direction. Faison began acting at five and starred opposite Angela Bassett in Waiting to Exhale and with Denzel Washington in Remember the Titans. The 27-year-old has also appeared in Felicity and Clueless.

✚ KEN JENKINS

The fatherly figure of Dr Kelso, Chief of Medicine, does not see eye to eye with John C McGinley's Dr Cox. While Dr Kelso sticks to the letter of the law with hospital procedures, Dr Cox will break the rules in order to help a patient. A seasoned performer in theatre, film and TV, Jenkins has appeared in The X-Files and in the films Air America, with Mel Gibson and Robert Downey Jr, and Courage Under Fire, with Meg Ryan and Matt Damon.

NURSE CARLA ESPINOSA
✚ JUDY REYES

Caring, but slightly jaded, Carla is passionate about her work as a nurse and keeps a protective eye on the fresh-faced interns. It's not long before she sparks up a relationship with Turk, having fallen for his charming attempts to woo her. 'I really admire Carla; she's smart and sassy and a very good nurse,' says Reyes, who's also been seen in TV drama series Oz and the film Bringing out the Dead.

CENTURY

Over 100 years after he claimed the life of his last known victim, experts still obsess over the identity of the killer Jack the Ripper. Discovery hopes to solve the mystery by putting the four main suspects on trial.
Words: Kylie Northover

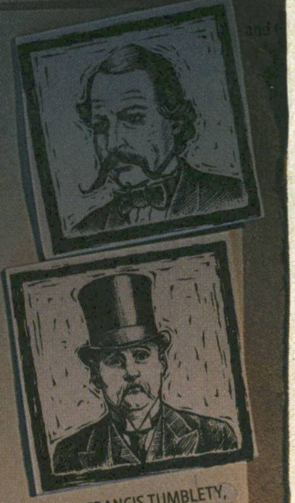
LONDON'S JACK THE RIPPER murders rank among the most enduring crime mysteries, having captured the imaginations of people around the world for more than 100 years. The horrific murders of five prostitutes in Whitechapel took place between 31 August and 9 November in 1888, all within the same square mile, and caused outrage and panic throughout the nation.

Now, in a ground-breaking interactive television trial, Discovery will attempt to unravel the infamous mystery in The Trial of Jack the Ripper.

There have been dozens of suspects over the years, but most of the experts in the field – Ripperologists, as they're known – agree that all the evidence points to four main suspects, and these men will be brought to 'trial' in Discovery's studio courtroom this month.

Hosted by TV mogul Michael Grade, the cases of the four suspects (Francis Tumblety, a dubious American doctor; James Maybrick, a cotton trader; Aaron Kosminski, a Polish immigrant; and Sir William Gull, the Queen's physician and part of a Royal conspiracy theory involving Prince Albert) will be presented to a studio audience and viewers at home.

Each of the accused will have a prosecuting advocate, who has access to all of Scotland Yard's Ripper files, witness statements and postmortem reports. The advocates, Jonathan Goldberg QC, who has defended the likes of Charlie Kray, James Morton, who represented Frankie Fraser, veteran journalist Angela Rippon and TV personality Jeremy Beadle, both self-confessed Ripperologists, will present evidence to the courtroom in the form of a dramatic reconstruction.



TOP: FRANCIS TUMBLETY, BOTTOM: JAMES MAYBRICK

The advocates will also call upon expert witnesses, including the owner of the famous Ripper diaries that surfaced in the early 1990s, who will then in turn be cross-examined by a defence advocate.

Part crime investigation, part entertainment, The Trial of Jack the Ripper reflects the unlikely appeal of this horrifying case.

Who would have thought that family entertainer Jeremy Beadle would be appearing on a programme about a gruesome murderer?

It may seem out of keeping with his TV career, but Beadle has long been fascinated by the Ripper mystery. So much so that his collection of Ripper books and crime memorabilia is so large that he re-built his indoor swimming pool as a library to house it.

'I've always enjoyed a good story, and all good stories end in murder or marriage – and I prefer murder,' he laughs.

'People tend to think that if you're interested in murder then there must be something morbid about it, but they're just great stories.

'I'm personally interested in the anecdotal side of the Jack the Ripper case. The Ripper has every element of a good story – it has mystery, it has suspense and it's unsolved. I think that's one of the main factors people love about it – that it could be you that comes up with the solution. Nobody ever does of course, but that hasn't stopped hundreds trying.' Including Beadle himself, who knows the ins and outs of every Ripper theory, and even owns the autopsy reports from the Ripper investigation.

'I have all the autopsy reports because if you are interested in examining the biography of a person, you do timelines and you plot things. I check the medical records; you can then see what the person was doing at the time of the events you're examining. One of the chief sources of these medical histories is autopsy reports.' Beadle explains.

'Because the crime has never been solved there are so many conspiracy theories, which is why the Ripper interests so many people, including myself.'

There have been countless films about the Ripper, and this month sees the release of the latest – From Hell, an atmospheric adaptation of the epic graphic novel by Alan Moore, which stars Johnny Depp. The film adheres to the Royal conspiracy theory and is expected to revive interest yet again in the enduring mystery.

Stewart Evans, a retired policeman and Ripper author, was an advisor for the film, and was also brought in for The Trial of Jack the Ripper. Stewart is one of Britain's foremost Ripper experts, and has the world's largest collection of Ripper books.

'People call me a Ripperologist, but I don't really like that word too much – I prefer criminal historian,' he explains.

'I've got copies of all the official records from the time, from the home office and the police, hundreds of photographs, and every book ever written on the subject, from reference books to biographies.'

Surely then, he must have the best idea of anyone who the Ripper was?

'Well, I have my own theory, but it may be different to the outcome of the programme.

'I think the Discovery trial is a great idea, and makes very good television. It's a very complex case, with masses of evidence, but the programme does a good job of presenting the main facts about these suspects in the time they've allowed,' he says.

'But even with all the existing evidence, there are still so many missing elements to the story – that's what makes it so intriguing. But I honestly think that's how it will remain – an intriguing, unsolved mystery.'

Beadle, however, holds out more hope. 'Ten years ago I would have said no, it'll never be solved,' he says, 'but so much has been discovered recently that I think it could actually be resolved. I think it could reach a firm conclusion. Now we have DNA and more forensic tests, I think it's possible.'

The experts are all agreed that it's one of the four suspects presented in The Trial of Jack the Ripper – despite American crime novelist Patricia Cornwell's claims late last year that she could prove it was the painter Walter Sickert. And now you can have your say on criminal history's greatest unsolved murders.

At the end of the 90-minute 'trial', the studio audience will vote for the suspect they believe is the real Ripper. Then, in a live, interactive broadcast later that week, viewers at home have their chance to vote and potentially overturn the studio verdict. Votes will be relayed to Discovery via the internet, by phone or through a digital set top box, and the verdict will be announced later that night. cg

Red Planet

See listings for details

The science fiction movie Red Planet wasn't just an opportunity for Carrie-Anne Moss to play a strong female character and see more of a country she loves.

Aside from the fact she portrays a spacecraft commander on a mission to save the human race, no less, in a film made in Australia – almost her second home, thanks to her involvement in the Matrix franchise – Moss has other, fonder memories of Red Planet.

During filming she announced her engagement to Canadian actor Steve Roy. The couple, who married in November 1999, bought matching rings at a small store near Sydney's famous Bondi Beach. 'Thirty-five Australian bucks [about £12.50],' Moss says, proudly showing off her wide, silver wedding band. 'Steve's the most important thing in my life but, as much as I'd like to talk to you about my husband because he's the greatest, I'll try not to – it's so hard because all you want to talk about is the person you love, right? Who cares about the movies, you know?'

We borrowed £20,000 for just £184 a month

Low rates – fixed for 3 years

If you're thinking about borrowing money, we could help you to release up to £50,000 of equity tied up in your home. You could then treat yourself to almost anything you have your eye on, or reorganise your other credit into one monthly payment to lower your monthly outgoings.

What better reason to celebrate?

All you have to do is call 0800 378 151 and talk to Black Horse - a company you can trust.

Homeowner Loan Repayments

Typical example: Borrow £20,000 over 120 months, at 9.7% APR (variable) and your monthly repayments without cover will be £256.48, with a total repayment of £30,777.60. Other rates are available for loans below £20,000. Loans are secured by a mortgage on your property. Written quotations are always available. Rates effective 30/09/2001.

YOUR HOME IS AT RISK IF YOU DO NOT KEEP UP REPAYMENTS ON A MORTGAGE OR OTHER LOAN SECURED ON IT.

APR 9.7%
on loans of £20,000 to £34,900

APR 8.6%
on loans of £35,000 to £50,000

We won't put your finances under a strain either - our new low rate is fixed for the first 3 years of your loan, and you can spread the payments over 5 to 20 years.

For added peace of mind, you can take advantage of our optional Payment Protection Plan. This can help meet your repayments in the event of death, illness, accident, compulsory redundancy, or hospitalisation if you are self-employed.

Loan purpose

If you apply for a loan, we will search your records at a Credit Reference Agency. They will add details of our search and application to your record. This will be seen by other organisations that make searches. We will use a credit scoring system when assessing your application. It is important that you give us accurate information as your details will be checked with fraud prevention agencies. If you give us false or inaccurate information and we suspect fraud, we will record this. Your record will be shared with other organisations who will use it to help make decisions about credit, trace debtors, recover debt and to prevent money laundering and fraud. Fraud Prevention Agency records will be shared with other organisations to help make decisions on motor, household, credit, life and other insurance proposals and insurance claims for you and members of your household. Details of the Credit Reference and Fraud Prevention Agencies we use can be obtained by phoning the above number. If you apply for a Homeowner Loan from Black Horse Finance Limited but are unable to satisfy our normal lending criteria, we will refer your application to Black Horse Limited who may offer you a loan on different terms. Black Horse Finance Limited and Black Horse Limited are part of the Lloyds TSB Group. Black Horse Finance Limited is a licensed credit broker. If your application is referred to Black Horse Limited, searches may be made and recorded by both companies. Offer applies to UK mainland only. Loans subject to status. Vicki Caravanning may not be for everyone. But who wouldn't want to give towing a try when a trip to France is involved?

Keen as mustard I was, when asked to take a caravan to France for a Top Gear GTi item. And I've never been a fan of the things. My excited feelings had nothing to do with the horrendous thought of towing a small house behind me, doing a maximum of 60mph while holding up every car that had the misfortune to share the same road as me. You see, I wanted to go because it was a week before Christmas and I could load the thing up with as much festive fizzy pop as I could cram in. Yes, there is always method behind madness.

DAY ONE

8.30am
A dodgy hotel in Dover. I hook up with the TV crew alongside the PR wonder-woman from the Caravan Club, Nikki Nicol, and a man who probably knows more about caravans than anyone would ever wish to know, Peter Vowles.

8.45am
While looking for the Truck Stop at Dover docks, where me and the crew are planning to set up and film the opening sequences, the caravan and I unintentionally block the entrance to the whole port, causing rather a serious tailback of traffic and making quite a few holiday-makers sweat. We are swiftly escorted away before we cause even more trouble.

Customs and Excise pop over to have a word. All's well though, as this is a planned interview. Find out that the Customs department own a pair of X-ray specs – how cool!

9.00–11.30am
Film in the elusive Truck Stop with the lovely backdrop of Dover's White Cliffs. Hitch the caravan with Peter's valuable help – I'd have rammed the thing with the Toyota Previa without him – and then I take my first look around the 'van (as I now affectionately call the mobile mini-house). To be honest, I'm amazed at how much detail goes into the interior design. The cupboards have latches like those in a yacht to keep them from popping open on the move; the way in which the seats and tables transform into beds is pretty neat, and then of course, there's a funky little bunk bed to squeeze a small child into. Or me.

I take the hot seat and tow the 'van onto the ferry. Instead of sliding in among the more sensible modes of transport – cars – I'm herded towards the lorry bit of the ferry. Crossing my fingers that I'd put on the handbrake properly, I go to relax on the boat.

12.15pm
No such luck. Have to interview Peter out on a windy deck and ask what the fascination is with taking a caravan abroad. 'The freedom,' says Peter. 'But you always go and park right next to other caravans in camp sites, so where's the freedom in that?' I quip. 'Well you can go and park on top of a deserted mountain if you want to,' replies Peter. OK then.

Photos: Scott Wishart, Steve Benbow

2.00pm
Off the ferry and onto the 'other side of the road' to undertake my first towing experience. Well, there's nothing like jumping in at the deep end. But to be honest, it isn't too difficult. As long as I look into the extra-wide set of door mirrors constantly, and I give myself some extra space around corners and when pulling out of T-junctions, then I'll get the 'van to the camp site in one piece.

4.00pm
Mission accomplished. Pull into the site where, once again, I rely totally on Peter's years of caravan experience as I reverse into the allocated slot, unhitch and head promptly for the bar! Only joking, actually went off to the local supermarket, where we all stock up on cheap booze and jumbo jars of Nutella.

7.00pm
To complete the proper caravan holiday experience, I'd planned to spend the night in the 'van. However, when the rest of the chaps book themselves into the nearby B&B, I follow. Swiftly. Call me old-fashioned, but I'm rather fond of solid walls and fully furbished bathrooms.

8.00pm
Lovely meal in B&B followed by one of the best night's sleep in ages.

DAY TWO

9.00am
Yet again, Peter the Caravan Man aids me and the Toyota onto a faultless hitch with the 'van, and we are on our way back to the ferry. I'm so conscious of not being able to go fast, that I pull over every time a poor car driver gets stuck behind me. Peter says he does the same if there are half a dozen or so cars following him, but I say that's half a dozen too many.

3.00pm
Back in my own car at Dover, without anything strapped to the back, and I give it a right load of revs all the way home.

Freedom? For me, it's a fast car, a credit card (preferably someone else's), and a good hotel guide readily to hand.

For all information on caravan holidays and the like, call the Caravan Club on 01342 326944.

E-MAIL: viewers@cable-guide.co.uk

WHEN WILL X-MEN EVOLVE?

Thank you so much for showing X-men Evolution, but there is one problem – we've seen all the episodes of the first series about a million times. When can we expect to see a second series?
Kirsty Graham, e-mail

A Cartoon Network spokesperson replies: 'We will be showing the second series of X-men Evolution, but not until later this year.'

NOWT SO QUEER AS FOLK

Is E4 planning on showing the US version of Queer as Folk? I loved the UK episodes and the trailers for the US one look really good!
The Williams's, e-mail

An E4 spokesperson informs us that there are no current plans for the channel to show the US version of Queer as Folk.

ANDROMEDA GOES AWOL

What on earth has happened to the new series of Andromeda (Monday nights, Sky One)? With no warning at all it seems to have been replaced by repeats of Star Trek. When is it coming back to the screens?
J McClughen, e-mail

Exactly what has happened to Andromeda? I see in December's Cable Guide a lovely picture of Lexa Doig and the print advertising Andromeda at 8.00pm, only to see two hours of Star Trek repeats taking its place!

When is Andromeda [whose Kevin Sorbo is pictured, right] back on and why has it been butted out halfway through the new series to make way for Star-Trek?
(V-Angry) R M, e-mail

A Sky One spokesperson replies: 'Andromeda was pulled from the schedule because we had caught up with the States with our episodes. The series will be back on Sky One later in the year.'

'When is Andromeda back on and why has it been butted out halfway through the series to make way for Star Trek?'

ON THE LOOK OUT FOR THIRD WATCH

A while ago Sky One and E4 showed the series Third Watch, which was absolutely brilliant. After the events of September 11th, a lot of people have been more interested in the New York emergency services and it might be nice to put the show back onto TV.

As this series involves all three emergency services, it is far more interesting than other such programmes and is extremely well written, with brilliant and believable actors who make the series what it is. The series is immensely popular in the US and would be over here, too.

Can you find out from Sky One and E4 whether there are currently any plans to show this series, and if so, when? Many thanks.
Nicola Williams, e-mail

A Sky One spokesperson replies: 'It's great to hear from such a big fan of Third Watch, and it's good news for all of you who have been waiting to see its return to Sky One. We have high hopes that this excellent series will return to our screens later this year or early next year, so stay tuned.'

WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

My family and I thoroughly enjoyed Cruel Summer last year. Is Trouble planning to show us a future update on the contestants? We would love to know what they are all doing now – have any of them found jobs in television? Has the Cruel Summer experience changed them and, more importantly, are Dean and Caroline an item? In the meantime, we will continue to enjoy the next season, with Cruel Winter.
Carole Taylor, e-mail

A Trouble spokesperson replies: 'Glad to hear you enjoyed Cruel Summer and that you are tuning into Cruel Winter for more cruelty! We had a quick catch up with Dirty Dean, the winner of Cruel Summer, who said, "Cruel Summer has done my reputation with the ladies no harm and I never expected people to be running up to me asking for my autograph when I came out!" Dean and Joe were on screen again as part of the Cruel Winter specials before Christmas on Trouble, but there are currently no plans to film updates with the rest of the contestants. As far as we know, Dean and Caroline are just good friends now, as are the rest of the Cruel Summer dirty dozen, who all meet up regularly.'

LETTER OF THE MONTH

Seeing Is believing

When are we deaf folk going to get full value from our fully paid TV licence? The subtitling on some programmes is terrible, or even non-existent. I like LivingTV and shows such as Jerry Springer and Ricki Lake [pictured, right]. But none have subtitles and it is so frustrating not being 'included' and able to follow the shows. True, the 9.00pm film has subtitles and is usually very good.

There are hundreds of deaf people out there, you know! Sometimes there is half a line of subs or it's not the same time as the action, or there's none at all. After all these years of TV, surely every show on every channel should be texted for us? I run a friendship centre for the deaf and hard of hearing – so I know we miss so much, and it's not fair.
Mrs Ellen Morris, Basildon, Essex

Congratulations, Ellen, you've won £50! A LivingTV spokesperson replies: 'This year LivingTV has increased the percentage of programmes we subtitle by 20 per cent. Next year, LivingTV plans to increase this amount further so that more of our popular programmes are subtitled and can be enjoyed by all.'

STARGATE: THE NEXT GENERATION?

Just wanna say, Sky One is the best channel in the world with some fantastic programmes! Most of all I like Stargate SG-1, and I am very happy Sky One has continued to broadcast this great show. I would, however, like to know if there is a new Stargate programme called Stargate Atlantis coming out.
Martin Jarvis, e-mail

A Sky One spokesperson replies: 'Many thanks for your support of Sky One. We hope to deliver fresh, innovative programmes to our viewers, and Stargate SG-1 has certainly been a massive hit with many of you. There are rumours surrounding a programme called Stargate Atlantis, but these cannot be confirmed at the moment. However, we are very excited about the idea and will be watching its development closely.'

THE DBZ SAGA CONTINUES

I am a huge fan of Dragonball Z (my favourite characters are Vegeta and Trunks), and I am absolutely furious at what the people at Cartoon Network are doing! Cutting the show in the middle of the Saga is an appalling way to repay our loyalty. I've looked in December's Guide, and they're replacing it with X-Men Evolution instead! You're driving me and my friends crazy! When are you going to show the Buu Saga?
Melissa Gillespie, Tyne and Wear

A spokesperson for Cartoon Network replies: 'We know that there are a huge amount of Dragonball Z fans out there, but the reality is that we can only show new batches of DBZ episodes when we receive them from the company we buy them from. When we receive them we schedule them as soon as possible for you guys! There are brand new episodes of DBZ set for March, as well as more later on. Cartoon Network will be showing every episode of DBZ, and hopefully some specials, but don't expect to see them all at once!'

Photos: LivingTV, BSkyB, Nickelodeon, Cartoon Network, Trouble

CHOICE VIEWING

I recently missed the showing of the Teen Choice Awards 2001 on Trouble. I was looking forward to watching it and I was wondering when it would be repeated as it looked really amazing.
Zari Raymond, e-mail

A Trouble spokesperson replies: 'Trouble's sorry you missed the Teen Choice Awards – it certainly was a star-studded event! We are planning to show the awards again over the Easter period, but at the time of going to press no time and date has been confirmed. Keep watching Trouble for more of the same!'

MEDIUM WAVE GOODBYE

I understand that John Edward, a medium shown on LivingTV, has been invited to visit the UK. I would like to see mediums like John challenged. For example, how can they communicate with the spirit of a passed-over loved one if that spirit has passed over to a new body? We know it as reincarnation. Mediums say the spirit doesn't move on to a new body right away, but at some later time. If this is the case, we are then given only a taste of life without the misery, then we are sent back. I find this idea horrendous. Mr Edward should stay in the USA.
Barbara Dunn, Birmingham

Looks like John Edward won't be heeding your advice, Barbara. He has proved so popular here in the UK that LivingTV has confirmed he will indeed be gracing these shores at some point this year.

JOLLY GOOD SHOW

I am just writing to say how excellent The Amanda Show on Nickelodeon is, especially the dancing lobsters! It's a real cable TV children's jewel. Are there any plans for an Amanda day?
Allan Devonish, Birmingham

Well, it sounds quite promising, Allan. Nickelodeon suggests that you watch this space for more Amanda madness!

Viewers Views* is on-line! Go to www.cableguide.co.uk and talk to fellow TV fans about the best (or worst) of cable TV.

FIVE ALIVE

I am a big Party of Five fan and missed the last series on E4. When will it be shown again?
Bob, London

You can see series six of Party of Five on E4 throughout February and March, Bob!

POPULAR STUFF

I'm the biggest fan of the fabulous teen drama Popular [Tammy Lynn Michaels, who plays Nicole Julian, is pictured below]. I really need to know whether it'll be showing on Sky One again as it's my favourite programme.
Alex Daniels, Newcastle

A Sky One spokesperson replies: 'Thanks for your enquiry; Popular is certainly a great series. At the moment the sassy kids at Kennedy High are taking a break from Sky One, but, hopefully, fans can look forward to seeing the return of the series later in the year.'

EDITOR'S NOTE

February's Cable Guide is guaranteed to banish your winter blues as it's a great month for comedy.

Legal eagle Ally McBeal returns to E4, and Calista Flockhart tells us about playing the loopy lawyer (page 6). Friends continues its rock-solid run – but how do the producers keep the laughs coming? Find out on page 12. And there's yet more mirth with the medics in Scrubs, Sky One's new hospital comedy (page 16).

The enduring Victorian mystery of Jack the Ripper's identity is explored in Discovery's compelling courtroom experiment – read all about it on page 18. As Valentine's Day looms, we take an affectionate look at TV's odd couples. And don't forget to check out our guide to the Brits going for gold at Salt Lake City (page 150).

A unique tribute to the all-time King of Rock 'n' Roll®

"1973, Aloha from Hawaii"

The first ever guitar-shaped plate in commemoration of the greatest entertainer of the twentieth century

In 1946, Gladys Presley bought her son his first guitar. And the rest is not simply history – but a phenomenon of the twentieth century. With that guitar, Elvis turned the music world upside down. No other singer has ever had as many records go gold; then platinum. There's no question: Elvis held the world's attention during his lifetime – and continues to hold it today.

Now, he's inspired a whole new shape in collector's plates ... the guitar. "1973, Aloha from Hawaii" is a tribute to Elvis like none before – a portrait of the King fired onto a hand-crafted sculptural porcelain guitar, and lavished with 22-carat gold accents.

Each plate is individually numbered and accompanied by a matching Certificate of Authenticity. To reserve your "1973, Aloha from Hawaii" plate – fully backed by the Bradford Exchange 365-day buy-back guarantee – simply complete the Priority Reservation Form and post it today.

Head for the sun: one of Ibiza's stunning beaches

WIN! A FAMILY HOLIDAY TO IBIZA

Don't let the winter blues get you down. Cable Guide, Travel Channel and Travel Deals Direct are offering the chance for a family of four to win a week in the sun at the popular resort of Port des Torrent in Ibiza.

Ideal for families, and conveniently situated at the end of San Antonio Bay on the west side of Ibiza, the resort of Port des Torrent boasts an attractive sandy beach with excellent watersports facilities. A multitude of restaurants, bars and shops make it the perfect resort for relaxing or having fun. Winners can enjoy the excellent facilities at the Sirenis Seaview Country Club, including access to tennis courts, swimming pools, watersports and the fitness room. A kids' club will keep the children happy throughout the day and with top-class entertainment every evening, this promises to be a holiday of a lifetime.

For the chance of winning a fun week in the sun, log onto www.cableguide.co.uk, and answer the following simple question:

On which island is the resort of Port des Torrent?

Postal entries also accepted, with name, address and daytime telephone number to Cable Guide/Ibiza competition, PO Box 2176, London W1A 5TW. The first correct entry drawn at random after the closing date of 28 February 2002 will be the winner. Terms and conditions: the holiday is for a family of up to four people (two adults, two children) and the prize includes seven nights self-catering studio accommodation in the prestigious four-star Sirenis Seaview Country Club in Port des Torrent. Return flights from Gatwick or Manchester are provided courtesy of Airtours and, if you win, you'll be able to take the holiday between 1 - 28 May or 27 September – 16 October 2002. Transfers are included. The prize is subject to availability. Terms and conditions of the holiday provider apply. No purchase necessary. No cash alternative to prizes. For full terms and conditions or the winner's name, please send a SAE marked 'Winner' to Travel Channel (February competition), PO Box 2451, London W1A 2UL. Live the life of a SUPERSTAR

...you can, with this fabulous prize from the World Wrestling Federation ®, courtesy of THQ. The prize consists of a PlayStation 2 signed by WWF superstar Rikishi, plus a copy of Smackdown! Just Bring It, one of Christmas's best selling games, and a life-size (6ft 5in) model of The Rock.

Smackdown! Just Bring It captures all the passion and excitement of the ring, with 35 of your favourite Superstars, and expansive arenas with animated audiences. If you want to experience what it's like to walk down the ramp and hear 50,000 people chant your name, this is the prize for you. Not only are there great graphics and sounds, but there are 78 different match combinations. And think twice before you hit the referee – they're now interactive, and could mark you down. Not satisfied with the existing superstars? You can now create your own superstar, right down to the size of his biceps – the only limit is your imagination.

Don't worry if you don't win the big prize! 10 runners-up will receive prizes of the game and life-size model.

To win this unique, must-have prize, answer the following question:

How many different match combinations are there in the new PlayStation 2 Smackdown! Just Bring It?

Postal entries also accepted, with name, address and daytime telephone number to Cable Guide/WWF competition, PO Box 2176, London W1A 5TW. The first 11 correct entries drawn at random after the closing date of 28 February 2002 will win. Full Cable Guide competition rules can be found on page 26

- Famous British trains straight from the Hornby catalogue
- 6 ready-to-play layouts or design your own
- Travel with the train or view layout from any angle
- Perfect gift for 8 to 80 year-olds

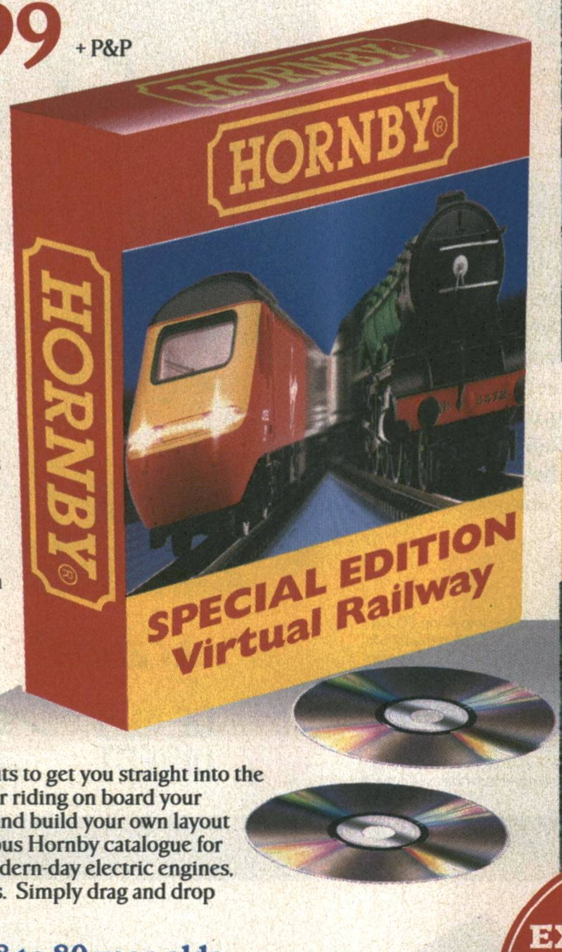
Special Edition Hornby Train Set Exclusive to Dream

only £19.99 + P&P



Adults and children alike adore model railways but how many can afford the money and space for their own set? Well, you can! This set costs less than £20 and lives in your PC so there's no clutter, no space restriction and no tidying up. Operate legendary engines ancient and modern from The Flying Scotsman to Eurostar around sprawling track layouts to whistle blasts and the clackety-clack of rolling stock as you switch points and pull up at platforms and sidings.

Special Edition

This Special Edition 2-CD-ROM set is exclusive to Dream and gives you a far greater range of accessories including extra classic locomotives plus Pullman carriages, tankers, wagons & trees.

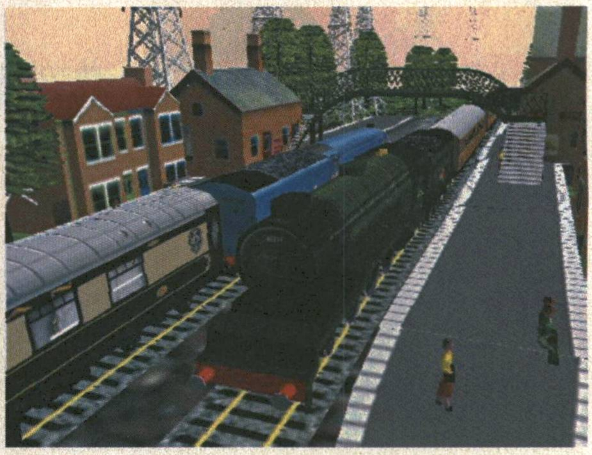
Easy to use

There are 6 ready-to-play layouts to get you straight into the action, zooming round at will or riding on board your engines. Alternatively, design and build your own layout by rifling through the prestigious Hornby catalogue for famous steam locomotives, modern-day electric engines, carriages, track and accessories. Simply drag and drop onto your track – it's that easy!

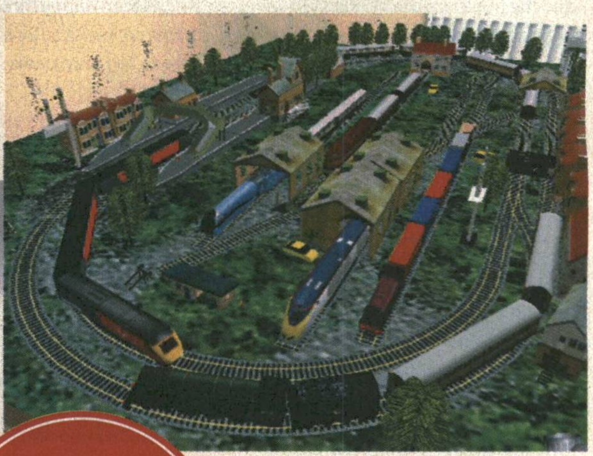
Perfect gift idea for 8 to 80 year-olds

An enthralling gift for all of us who remember the train sets of our childhood or to introduce any child over 8 to the joys of this British classic.

Minimum PC requirements: P200, 32MB RAM, Windows 95/98/ME/XP



Select track, points, signals, bridges and buildings then choose any combination of locomotives and carriages.



Play with your layout in the 'attic', 'garage' or 'spare room' just like the real thing! Controlling the trains is easy.

KIDS' INFORMATION PAGE

Get ready for Disney Channel's new animation, Teamo Supremo. Interview: Tina Ogle

Dreamteam

→ Three new superheroes arrive this month with Disney's latest cartoon, Teamo Supremo. Prepare for the cries of 'Wu-Pah!', 'Buh-Za!' and 'Chi-Ka!', as Captain Crandall, Rope Girl and Skate Lad bounce into your home.

The brainchild of executive producer Phil Walsh and director Joe Horne, Teamo looks a lot like those classic Sixties animations. This was a deliberate ploy, as Horne explains: 'We have a Sixties mentality, but we get to use 21st-century technology. The series has a very groovy beat; we're going for "maximum pop".

'If you were to mix rock 'n' roll and comic books, the result would be Teamo Supremo.'

The superheroes are the alter egos of three school children, Crandall, Brenda and Hector, who decide to use their special powers to protect their state from the forces of evil. They take on a host of villains, from the dastardly Dentist and the Birthday Bandit, to the Laser Pirate and chunky bad guy, Mr Large.

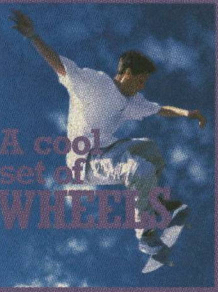
They're not exactly nerds, but the trio certainly aren't the coolest kids in school. This was important to Walsh.

'We wanted this show to be empowering to kids, to have the message "believe in yourself". These kids are physically flawed, but it doesn't stop them from doing anything, including saving the world.'

If you saw the Bruce Willis Disney movie The Kid, you may recognise the voice of Crandall, which is provided by Spencer Breslin, who played Willis's eight-year-old self. 'Crandall had to have that unique, honest, diligent voice of a kid' says Walsh, 'and Spencer's was perfect.'

Teamo Supremo, Disney Channel, weekdays from 25th, 3.45pm

Win



A cool set of WHEELS

Disney Channel is giving you the chance to skid into February with a Teamo Supremo skateboard, worth £80. For your chance to win, simply name the superhero alter egos of Crandall, Brenda and Hector in Teamo Supremo. So, get your skates on and post your entry today!

Answers on a postcard, with your name and address, to Cable Guide/Teamo Supremo competition, PO Box 2176, London W1A 5TW. The first correct entry drawn at random will win. Closing date: 28 February 2002. Full Cable Guide competition rules on page 26.

Robot wars

Cartoon Network's new robot series, Cubix, is the must-see of half-term. Chief director, Joonbum Heo, reveals the nuts and bolts of it

→ For mesmerising computer graphic imagery (CGI) and futuristic action and adventure, look no further than the gob-smackingly good Cubix.

Set in the day-after-tomorrow future, Cubix takes place in Bubble Town, where RobixCorp, the world's leading robot manufacturer, tests all its latest models. For years, the humans and robots of Bubble Town have lived and worked together in harmony, but suddenly the robots turn against each other. Could the dreaded Dr K and the alien be behind it all?

The mystery unfolds when Connor moves to town and meets Abby, Chip, and Mong. These robot-crazed kids all hang out at Hela's repair shop. There, Connor repairs Cubix, the 'unfixable robot' created by Hela's missing dad, the infamous Professor Nemo, who gave robots the ability to have human emotions. The now operational Cubix reveals startling powers that prove invaluable in finding out why the robots are at odds.

Joonbum Heo, Cubix's chief director, explains: 'Cubix is more than a fiction of future life. We wanted to create a place where everyone loves to live. At the same time we wanted to depict kids' dreams. Every child has a robot who always listens to his or her desires and makes their dreams come true.'

But will there really be a future like this? Joonbum says an emphatic yes. 'Robots with emotions will appear in the future – either because of people's curiosity, or necessity.'

So, what can you expect when Cubix debuts mid-month? 'The first series introduces our heroes, Bubble Town and Cubix' says Joonbum. 'At the same time villains go into action with their evil plan.'

Cubix, Cartoon Network, weekdays from Monday 11th, 9.00am; weekends from Saturday 16th, 8.30am, 5.30pm

A Winter Friend

Fine porcelain trimmed with 22 carat gold

"When I first saw Rex, I knew I had to paint him" says artist John Fitzgerald. "He was such a handsome dog, just a year old. Over the months, I sketched him many times. Always he would pose for me, patiently waiting until I had finished."

"One morning I awoke to find that it had snowed, and I wanted to sketch him in the snow. Rex couldn't wait to get out and investigate. We walked for a while, then he stopped, and turned to look back to check that I was following. Outlined against the morning sun, he seemed the very embodiment of friendship and nobility, and I knew this would be the picture I had been waiting so long to paint."

A masterpiece in fine porcelain

Now, John Fitzgerald's masterpiece is complete. He has captured the very essence of the German Shepherd - strength, beauty, nobility and loyal friendship.

Just look at the detail! From the gleam in Rex's eye to the alertness of the ears, he is so true to life. Every subtle variation of his fur has been so perfectly captured, you feel you could reach out and pat him.

Clash of the pop titans

Outspoken VJ Natalie Casey returns with a bigger and bolder series of Videoclash. Interview: Kylie Northover

This month sees the return of MTV's Videoclash, the show based on mobile phone text-messaging that became the channel's highest-rating programme last year.

The request show, in which viewers choose the video they want to see by voting via text-messaging, created warring video choices, with voters texting in their no-holds-barred messages.

The biggest pop stars of the day often took a battering on-screen as the voters voiced their opinions about their latest hits.

The new series of Videoclash promises to see the gloves-off even more, with Natalie Casey now hosting in front of a live audience.

When the music show began last year, nobody realised just how big the text-messaging phenomenon would be.

'It really took off for MTV in a big way and now lots of other channels use texting as well,' explains former Hollyoaks star-turned-VJ Natalie.

'With the new Videoclash, viewers can still text in, but we'll also get comments from the audience about who they want to vote for.'

And just to step up the tension, top pop celebrities will actually feature on Videoclash, so that they face criticism live on air and you'll be able to see the looks on their faces.

Could Videoclash be the bitchiest pop show on the telly?

'Ooh, I hope so,' laughs Natalie.

'I think it will depend on what type of people we have in the audience as well as the guests, but I'd like to see some tantrums.'

Videoclash viewers have never been shy with their opinions on the latest star and their tunes, and now the topical pop rivalries of the day are set to get even more catty, especially with Natalie, never one to hold back, in charge.

'I think it'll be great. Some pop stars take themselves way too seriously. I think it's because they're always surrounded by all these people telling them how great they are, and that's just rubbish really. I think you have to be able to have a laugh at yourself,' she says.

'And Videoclash might test that theory! You can never tell how some people are going to react. I think there's definitely hope of some good old slaggin' off.' cg

Videoclash*, MTV, weekdays from 18th, 3.30pm

It's show time

Break out your flares as the new series of That 70s Show premieres on Trouble

Following the adventures of a group of suburban teenagers and their families, during the era of Led Zeppelin, The Bay City Rollers, Donny Osmond and Farrah Fawcett, That 70s Show has a loyal fan following that includes several Seventies celebrities.

Over the last two series, famous guest stars have included Marion Ross, best known as Mrs Cunningham from Happy Days, Eve Plumb, who was the Brady Bunch's Jan, and Danny Bonaduce from The Partridge Family.

In the new series, which sees Fez getting a girlfriend, Eric getting a tattoo and the gang taking a road trip to Canada, famous guest stars will include Seventies rockers Ted Nugent and Alice Cooper. cg

THE FLINTSTONES IN VIVA ROCK VEGAS

MARK ADDY, STEPHEN BALDWIN, JOAN COLLINS

Sky Premier, Saturday 9th, 8.00pm

John Goodman no longer being available, The Full Monty's Mark Addy picks up the animalskin (well, better than clingfilm) in this live-action prequel to The Flintstones. A young Fred courts the high-class Wilma (3rd Rock from the Sun's statuesque Kristen Johnston), much to the disgust of her mother (Joan Collins), who is eager for her to marry Rock Vegas casino developer Chip Rockefeller, played by Thomas Gibson (Dharma and Greg's Greg). Stephen Baldwin is the dopey Barney, while Jane Krakowski (from Ally McBeal) is Betty. In case you get bored with the daft verbal and visual puns, there's a friendly alien being called the Great Gazoo (voiced by Alan Cumming) who is visiting Earth to observe the planet's mating rituals and offers to help the boys out. Definitely one for the very young at heart.

FILM GUIDE

reviews by Gill Crawford

THE ADVENTURES OF ELMO IN GROUCHLAND/ MUPPETS FROM SPACE

Sky Premier, Friday 8th, from 8.00am

The Jim Henson legacy lives on. Sesame Street favourite Elmo travels to Grouchland to find his blanket, which has been stolen by the nasty Mr Huxley (hissable Mandy Patinkin). With the help of other Sesame Street residents, Elmo rescues his blanket and learns a good lesson about friendship and sharing. In Muppets from Space, Gonzo is convinced he is an alien and has to be rescued by the rest of the Muppets after he is kidnapped by a shadowy government agency. Some funny digs at other films and TV shows will keep the grown-ups happy.

FORTRESS 2: RE-ENTRY

CHRISTOPHER LAMBERT, PAM GRIER, PATRICK MALAHIDE

Sky MovieMax, Wednesday 6th, 10.00pm

Why on earth (or off-earth, in this instance) Christopher Lambert would choose to return to the prison that caused him so much trouble the first time round is a question probably best left to his accountant. In this sequel, Lambert returns as John Brennick, in trouble once again with the Men-Tel corporation that put him away in the first film. Having escaped once, Men-Tel now put him in a space station prison where the governor is secretly making weapons. But they haven't counted on Brennick's resourcefulness, as he heads back to earth to save his family.

GLENGARRY GLEN ROSS

AL PACINO, JACK LEMMON, ED HARRIS

Carlton Cinema, Saturday 9th, 9.00pm

To adapt David Mamet's razor-sharp, Pulitzer Prize-winning play for the screen, director James Foley did the right thing. Rather than move the action around, he picked a heavyweight cast who could bring to life the group of desperate estate agents who find their jobs on the line when the smooth but vicious Alec Baldwin arrives from head office. Al Pacino is the hot-shot Ricky Roma, who can talk his way out of anything, Jack Lemmon visibly sweats as old hand Shelley Levene, and Ed Harris, Alan Arkin and Kevin Spacey bring up the rear.

GOSSIP

LENA HEADEY, JAMES MARSDEN

Sky Premier, Tuesday 26th, 10.00pm

Three bored American students (Lena Headey, James Marsden and Norman Reedus) decide to take an English assignment to extremes. Having spotted two of their classmates (Joshua Jackson and Kate Hudson) disappear during a drunken party, they decide to spread the word that the two had sex and see what happens. Inevitably, things go wrong almost immediately, with Jackson being accused of rape and Hudson reportedly committing suicide. This doesn't seem to worry the perpetrators too much: they've got their own secrets to hide. There's some smart dialogue and a strange plot twist, but the film doesn't give you much faith in the American education system.

LAURA

GENE TIERNEY, DANA ANDREWS, VINCENT PRICE

Carlton Cinema, Sunday 10th, 8.30pm

So who did kill the beautiful Laura Hunt (Gene Tierney)? That's the mystery at the heart of this classic Forties film noir from director Otto Preminger. Dana Andrews is the obsessive policeman investigating the discovery of the dead girl's body on the floor of her apartment, who falls in love with the 'victim' through her portrait. Suspects are everywhere: could it be smooth, money-grabbing fiancé Vincent Price, or what about her mentor, newspaper columnist Clifton Webb, spitting out bitchy one-liners while

From top left: The Adventures of Elmo in Grouchland; Glengarry Glen Ross; Romancing the Stone; Fortress 2: Re-entry; Shanghai Noon; Gossip inside he's twisted with jealousy? And then there's Laura's aunt, Judith Anderson. These are all truly unspeakable people, but you're pulled into the story less by the characters than by the clever plot twists, the rain-soaked sets and the fine David Raksin score.

PREDATOR

ARNOLD SCHWARZENEGGER, CARL WEATHERS, BILL DUKE

Sky MovieMax, Wednesday 13th, 10.00pm

In Die Hard director John McTiernan's nail-biting thriller, Arnold Schwarzenegger plays the leader of a troop of elite commandos, sent on a secret mission into the jungles of South America to rescue US airmen who've been kidnapped by guerrillas. But the team soon finds itself pursued, with members falling victim one by one to a brutal death at the hands of a formidable and unseen assailant. This turns out to be an alien who can make himself invisible and is indulging his pastime of hunting intergalactic species. It all builds up to a rousing and bloody climax, with Arnie and the alien battling it out for survival. Arguably Schwarzenegger's finest moment. Excellent special effects, crunchy action and good value-for-money entertainment all round.

ROMANCING THE STONE/ THE JEWEL OF THE NILE

KATHLEEN TURNER, MICHAEL DOUGLAS, DANNY DEVITO

Sky Premier, Saturday 9th, from 3.40pm

Sparkling romantic action comedies, with the double act of Michael Douglas and Kathleen Turner harking back to the finest screwball comedy pairings of the Thirties and Forties. She plays romantic novelist Joan Wilder, while he's the roguish Jack Colton, who could have stepped straight out of one of her novels. In the first film Joan finds herself in Columbia trying to find her sister and obliged to rely on the help of the self-serving Jack, while in the sequel, the pair of them head off to North Africa. In both movies, they're pursued by the unscrupulous Danny DeVito, who's clearly having as much fun as the leads.

SHANGHAI NOON

JACKIE CHAN, OWEN WILSON, LUCY LIU

Sky MovieMax, Thursday 28th, 10.00pm

For his follow-up to his recent US hit Rush Hour, Hong Kong superstar Jackie Chan teams up with the laid-back Owen Wilson for this cheerful, if somewhat slapdash and slackly plotted Western. Chan's the Chinese imperial guard Chon Wang, sent to 1880s Nevada to rescue princess Lucy Liu (better known as Ling in Ally McBeal), who's been sold by her wicked tutor (the smarmy Jason Connery) into a forced marriage. Wilson plays the outlaw who hinders as much as he helps. There are some splendid action scenes, as you'd expect, and the two leads play off each other surprisingly well.

THE WILD BUNCH

Sky Cinema, Monday 11th, 10.00pm

THE GETAWAY

Sky Cinema, Monday 18th, 10.00pm

Director Sam Peckinpah described 1969's The Wild Bunch as, 'A simple story about bad men in changing times'. Tracing the downfall of a group of ageing outlaws – led by William Holden – in turn-of-the-century Mexico, it's an incredibly violent but poetically photographed Western, with no holds barred as to the brutality and bloodiness of the grizzled protagonists' way of life. Hard-boiled just isn't the word for Peckinpah's adaptation of cult crime writer Jim Thompson's pulp novel The Getaway. Steve McQueen plays Carter 'Doc' McCoy, a tough convict who is granted parole by corrupt politician Ben Johnson in order to pull off a bank job. It's a set-up, of course, so McQueen goes on the run with wife Ali MacGraw, guns blazing.

X appeal

Playing a starship captain and then the leader of the X-Men mutants brought Patrick Stewart international fame. But, he tells Garth Pearce, it was a long time coming

It is reminiscent of a Star Trek plot. Patrick Stewart is virtually beamed up to a New York hotel suite from a chauffeur-driven limousine and seems shocked by the latest turn of events. At 61, this fine actor has achieved another great success after 40 years in the business as a star of the excellent ensemble fantasy X-Men.

'Life' he says, 'has been full of surprises. It seems to me that one minute I was struggling to make something of myself and wondering how much more theatre I had to do before anyone noticed. And the next, I am sitting here, asking myself: "What happened?"'

Stewart, who plays Professor Charles Xavier in X-Men, leading a collection of good-guy mutants battling on behalf of mankind against an evil brotherhood of mutants, has led a life of two halves. The first was up to the age of 47. He was a much-admired, but not exactly famous, veteran of British theatre. The second was launched on the back of splendid nonsense in a television series, Star Trek: the Next Generation.

He was introduced to American audiences as 'unknown' and 'unheralded', but 'classically trained'. There were complaints from Star Trek fans about what they called 'this shiny domed thespian' taking over from Captain Kirk and being introduced as his successor, Captain Jean-Luc Picard.

If he felt somewhat crushed at the time, he remained tight-lipped. But he's now so famous, he can't walk along an American street without being mobbed.

This is not what he trained for at the Bristol Old Vic. Hardly what he expected when playing Henry IV and Titus Andronicus at Stratford-upon-Avon, and he undoubtedly never imagined this sort of thing while premiering productions of Tom Stoppard and David Rudkin.

'I've just got to sit back and enjoy the ride,' he says. 'Acting is a mad world at the best of times and it doesn't get madder than this. I thought Star Trek was a crazy ride, but to be the leader of a group of mutants is absolutely nuts. Don't get me wrong – I'm not complaining. I am having the time of my life, because I can still do theatre and other things if I want. The fact that there will be a second X-Men film next year gives me financial security.'

The first film, based on a Marvel comic book series, is something of a surprising treat and was one of last year's box-office successes.

Among other things, it launched the film career of unknown Australian actor Hugh Jackman, as steel-clawed hero Wolverine, and it established Halle Berry as a sex symbol, resplendent in white wig, playing Storm, a character that can control the weather.

Other players include former Bond girl Famke Janssen, playing Jean Grey, who has telepathic powers; James Marsden as Cyclops, who can burn with his eyes; and young Oscar-winner, Anna Paquin, as Rogue, taking over the power of others at a touch.

Stewart's character guides this group of heroic misfits, each born with a unique genetic mutation, trying to control their exceptional powers for the good of us all.

He is locked in a constant battle with Erik Lehnsherr, also known as Magneto – played by Ian McKellen – who believes that mutants must dominate humans.

To see veterans Stewart and McKellen lock horns is recommendation enough to tune in to the movie.

'Between scenes, we were able to have laughs about the old times,' says Stewart. 'We first met at the Royal Shakespeare Theatre in Stratford-upon-Avon – it was called the Memorial Theatre in those days – in the 1960s and had some great memories.'

He probably doesn't reflect on his childhood with such fondness, though; the immaculately dressed Stewart certainly looks far removed from his poverty-stricken days in Mirfield, Yorkshire.

He was brought up by soldier father Alfred and weaver mother Gladys, in a home that he describes as 'very poor and violent'.

His career as a young hack on the Dewsbury and District Reporter ended when he made up stories so he could rehearse with the local amateur dramatic society.

But he insists: 'Try as I may, I can't take that Yorkshire boy out of myself. I was helped along the way, by teachers and others who probably knew our position and just how short money was. And I've never counted on anything. I know that you can work hard all your life and still not get the recognition.' cg

DRIVING FORCE

After the gruelling emotional exertions of Girl, Interrupted, Angelina Jolie was looking for a role in lighter, more escapist fare. The demolition derby Gone in 60 Seconds fitted the bill perfectly. Interview: Lawrie Masterson

ACADEMY AWARD-WINNING actress Angelina Jolie still drives the first car she ever owned.

'It's a pick-up truck, which is what I really should have because me in a Ferrari is, like, insane,' she says.

'I love to drive fast and I'm one of those people who, if I get frustrated, will just drive for three hours, listen to music and sing at the top of my voice.'

The speed demon in 26-year-old Jolie, who won her Oscar as Best Supporting Actress in Girl, Interrupted (1999) and also starred in last year's Tomb Raider, was certainly given a fuel-injected workout in the car heist action movie Gone in 60 Seconds.

From producer Jerry Bruckheimer and director Dominic Sena, Gone in 60 Seconds is a loose remake of the 1974 cult classic of the same name, written by and starring HB Halicki, who was killed in 1989 during a stunt sequence being filmed for a sequel to the original film. His wife, Denice, is credited as an executive producer of the remake.

It stars Nicolas Cage as 'Memphis' Raines, a retired car thief who is coerced back into his old business to save the life of his kid brother, Kip (Giovanni Ribisi). If Kip is to be spared by the nefarious Raymond Calitri (British actor Christopher Eccleston), Memphis must steal and deliver 50 exotic cars in one night.

But first he has to reassemble his trusted support team, which includes Ferrari-obsessed mechanic – and Memphis' former lover – Sarah 'Sway' Wayland (Jolie).

The movie was Jolie's first following her Oscar as the mentally unstable Lisa Rowe in Girl, Interrupted and she admits she was advised against accepting the role. 'Well, it was one of those things where everybody would tell me, "Don't do this because you want to be a serious actor", but I did it because it was exactly what I needed,' she says.

'I needed to do something that didn't demand too much after Girl, Interrupted. I couldn't have done another really big, emotional thing right away and I like these actors and thought this was a fun movie and it's different.

'It's so much about the cars and it was simply fun to do and I hope that comes across on screen. Nic [Cage] and I were always laughing and giggling.'

The cars on Memphis Raines' hit list include everything from a Rolls-Royce stretch limousine to a 1967 Shelby Mustang. Jolie, who wears blonde dreadlocks in the film, says she modelled her looks on her character's favourite car.

'In my private life I never really wear much make-up and I'm always in jeans and T-shirts,' she says. 'I don't put much thought into myself.

'But if you see an actor in enough films and they look like themselves all the time, then you're watching the actor and it's hard to imagine they're somebody else. With Gone in 60 Seconds, I thought she should look like a Ferrari, so that was my interpretation.

'I thought she'd be one of those sexy car girls, so she'd have tight pants and her hair would be really long, but I thought she'd never wash it so she'd have dreadlocks.

'I'm just trying to have fun and show people something they maybe haven't seen before.'

Jolie, whose next film will be Life or Something Like It opposite Edward Burns, continues to confound the naysayers who predicted her unconventional marriage to actor, writer and director Billy Bob Thornton would be as brief as it was sudden.

Jolie met Thornton, 20 years her senior, when they co-starred – ironically as a married couple – in Pushing Tin (1999). At the time he was in a relationship with actress Laura Dern, but when that ended he and Jolie secretly wed in Las Vegas in May 2000. It is her second marriage, his fifth.

'I didn't want him to be my boyfriend,' she insists. 'I hate that word. The moment I met him I actually walked smack bang into a wall and was stunned and couldn't breathe. I probably would have married him that day.' cg

Reviewing your pension regularly can make a real difference to what you'll get in retirement.

It's good to have set up a pension, but to make the most of it you can't be complacent. Circumstances change, so you need to review your pension regularly to ensure you get the income you want when you retire. (Think of it as an annual 'must do' - like renewing home or car insurance.) If it's a while since you checked your pension, do it now. To help, there's a government guide offering general information on the pension options available. For a copy simply call us, visit our website or complete the coupon.

His dashing good looks, athletic grace and irresistible rogue-like charm made Errol Flynn the ultimate leading man

NO MOVIE HERO HAS ever been more heroic than Errol Flynn in his heyday. In swashbucklers, action films and Westerns, he was the sort of man boys wanted to grow up to be and women of all ages wanted to be swept away by.

Born in Tasmania, he landed a lead role as Fletcher Christian in the 1933 Australian film In the Wake of the Bounty and wended his way to Hollywood. When esteemed English actor Robert Donat turned down the role of Captain Blood, Warners' contract director Michael Curtiz remembered the handsome young bit-player who had played the corpse in his murder-mystery The Case of the Curious Bride; he promptly elevated him to title role stardom as the 17th-century Irish doctor transported to the West Indies for treating a wounded rebel soldier, who rises from virtual slave to become the captain of a pirate ship. In Captain Blood, Flynn won fair maid Olivia de Havilland and duelled on the sand with rival buccaneer Basil Rathbone – bits of business he would reprise several times during his career.

The only thing that kept Flynn on the rails when his wenching-and-drinking private life threatened to ruin his career was strong direction. Warners knew that martinets, like the strutting Hungarian Curtiz and the one-eyed Raoul Walsh, could keep him in line and, in due course, 19 of his vehicles were handled by these two film-makers.

Curtiz followed Captain Blood with The Charge of the Light Brigade, which spends more time fighting the rebellious tribesmen of the Indian North-West Frontier than in the Crimea, where Flynn finally leads the famous charge. Curtiz then took over from William Keighley on the film that landed Flynn his immortal reputation, The Adventures of Robin Hood.

In simply the best action-swashbuckler ever made, Flynn knows when to play up the humorous aspects (he reacts to a proclamation that he shouldn't hunt the king's deer by barging his way uninvited to Nottingham Castle with a dead buck over his shoulders to throw it on the table in front of Bad King John), but also when to sell straight heroism with a stirring line like: 'It's injustice I hate, not Normandy!'

The film has lovely pastel colours, a rapturous Erich Wolfgang Korngold score, superb villainy from Rathbone and Claude Rains, a winsome heroine in de Havilland and a forestful of merry men in supporting roles. But it's Flynn's film all the way and Curtiz keeps him always on the move, jumping from trees or battlements, fighting all over the castle and putting arrows in the target at every shot.

After that, Curtiz toned things down for The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex, which has Bette Davis trying to be serious as Queen Elizabeth I and Flynn playing up his shallowness as the swain doomed to get the chop. But it was brawling business as usual in the terrific Western Dodge City and more tights and piracy in The Sea Hawk, with Flora Robson this time as Elizabeth and Flynn as her favourite privateer.

Walsh handled They Died with Their Boots On and Gentleman Jim, with Flynn doing light acting as Custer and the boxing champ Jim Corbett respectively, then had Flynn controversially win WWII on his own in Desperate Journey and Objective Burma.

After the war – rated 4-F by the draft board, he consoled himself with starlets and booze and got an unsavoury reputation – it was all over, with bloated attempts at regaining former glory (The Adventures of Don Juan, The Master of Ballantrae) and sad showings in semi-autobiographical drunk roles (in The Sun Also Rises and as his personal idol John Barrymore in Too Much Too Soon) before an early death at the age of 50. He did have a last hurrah, though, in the trashy Cuban Rebel Girls playing opposite his last offscreen love interest, 16-year-old Beverly Aadland. cg

How Does It Work?

The Bodi-Tek Sports ELITE's powerful triple action EMS (Electronic Muscle Stimulation) unit guarantees fast effortless results for anyone. Simply attach the pads, targeting individual muscle groups couldn't be easier, including Abs, Triceps, Biceps and Quads. Then switch the unit on, you will feel a tingling sensation followed by a series of powerful contractions as tiny electronic pulses replicate the signals sent by the brain to the nerves, causing your muscles to work exactly as they do during strenuous exercise.

SNOWSTOPPERS

Salt Lake City in Utah is poised to host the biggest Winter Olympics yet. Here, we preview three key sports with great British hopes, round up the rest of the top events and, over the page, talk to Lesley McKenna, our top British snowboarder, about going for gold. Interviews: Gabriel Fleming

SKELETON BOBSLED

BRITISH HOPE: Alex Coomber

To call Alex Coomber a natural would be something of an understatement. The speed at which she rose to the top of her sport is fitting for a woman who has made a name for herself by hurtling down icy chutes on little more than a tea tray. It's an exciting time for the event: the men's competition returns to the Games after a 54-year absence, and it's an Olympic first for the women's event.

For Coomber, it all started with a 'novice week' event, where she beat everyone, including the men. But the turning point came seven days later: 'I competed in my first World Cup and came fifth. I'd been doing the sport for 10 days.' She continued this progress by going on to win the World Cup twice. Coomber sees no reason why she shouldn't bring home the goods. 'I've never been to an Olympics. But then nobody in Skeleton today has. Someone has to come away with the gold so I stand a good chance.'

SLALOM SKIING

BRITISH HOPE: Alain Baxter

Alain Baxter – aka 'The Highlander' – is determined to break records. The Scottish skier came fourth in the last leg of last year's World Cup and 11th in the overall rankings. But the winner of Glenfiddich's Spirit of Scotland Sports Award is well fancied to go one better and become the highest placed British male skier in Olympic history.

He has come a long way for a man who once considered giving up the sport altogether: 'A while ago I was thinking of finishing. You know what it's like, you have a couple of bad days or a couple of bad months and you think, "I've had enough of this lark"'.

Ever the consummate professional, there is no danger of Baxter getting carried away by the bright lights of Salt Lake City: 'I try to keep focused on how I should be skiing. You have to know the course pretty much by heart. I've learned that from my mistakes.'

BRITISH HOPE: Hammy McMillan

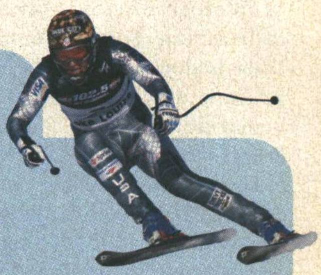
The Olympics are special for all athletes, but Hammy McMillan will have some extra demons to lay to rest in Salt Lake City. A superpower in European curling, McMillan's team missed out on going to the last Olympics (1998's event in Nagano, Japan) by virtue of a shock defeat in the British Championships, and he was confined to watching the games as TV pundit rather than competitor.

'It was very disappointing to sit and watch it on the television. I was gutted at the time. The only thing I said then was that I want to make amends. I'm fortunate enough that – four years later – I have the chance to do that.'

McMillan's Olympic aspirations carry the added weight of recent World and European championships, but he is quietly unfazed by the expectation: 'I don't find it a pressure to be perfectly honest. I find I enjoy it.'

The speed at which Coomber rose to the top of her sport is fitting for a woman who has made a name for herself by hurtling down icy chutes on little more than a tea tray

TOP STARS TO WATCH



American downhill skier Picabo Street

In the men's figure skating, all recent form points to the Russian pair Yevgeny Plushenko and Alexei Yagudin. Their domination has seen them share first and second spots in six of the last eight European and World Championships. And Salt Lake City will be an opportunity for them to continue their rivalry on the very highest stage.

Watch out for the wonderfully named and ever-popular American skier Picabo Street. A Super-G gold medallist in the 1998 Nagano games and twice downhill world champion, in 1995 and 1996, she has just come back from a horrific spell of injuries and looks set for a fairytale final Olympics in front of her home crowd in Utah.

In team sports, the men's ice hockey will be by far the most eagerly anticipated event. Canada, which undoubtedly produces the world's best players, will arrive in Salt Lake City with a grim determination to end an inexplicable 50-year spell without a gold medal. Although they can expect fierce competition from the Americans, Czechs and Finns.

ON BOARD for success

Snowboarding is still a relatively new Olympic sport, and should provide plenty of thrills and spills in Salt Lake City. Gabriel Fleming talks to Brit Lesley McKenna, one of the sport's major stars

FOR ALL THE GLAMOUR and glitz of the Games's showcase events in skiing and figure skating, there will be little to rival the Snowboarding Halfpipe for style and spectacle. And one woman hoping to make sure of that is Lesley McKenna. The bonnie lass from Aviemore is far and away the best British snowboarder around, managing two podium finishes and an overall third in last year's FIS Halfpipe World Cup.

There are two main snowboarding events: the Parallel Giant Slalom, which is all about speed, and is debuting at these games, and McKenna's discipline, the Halfpipe, which is concerned with technique and expression. The Halfpipe takes place in a half-cylinder-shaped course dug deep into the hill. Using speed gained on the slope, the competitors come up over the rim of the high vertical walls and perform acrobatic aerial tricks.

McKenna explains the sport's unique appeal: 'The Halfpipe is one of the only events that you can watch in a small arena. You can see it all, from the minute somebody drops in to the minute they go over the finish line. It's really easy to see the whole run, so that makes it excellent for the spectators, and because the spectators are having a good time it makes it good for the riders.'

A former skiing champion, McKenna switched over just five years ago, and her reasons are indicative of an adventurous spirit that could yet guide her to Olympic glory: 'At the level I was at in skiing it was a case of fine tuning. Snowboarding was new, interesting and a real challenge. I still feel like an intermediate, compared to how I was when I skied. I still feel as though I have a lot to learn, and that's what keeps me going.'

Salt Lake City will be only the second Olympics to feature snowboarding as a fully fledged Olympic sport, and controversy surrounding the behaviour of some of the competitors at the event's inaugural winter games in Nagano has led some to question whether it can be an event of true Olympic pedigree. That it already has a worldwide following would suggest the affirmative.

It is refreshing to hear how McKenna's love for the sport overrides any competitive streak: 'What the Olympics mean to snowboarders is that there's going to be possibly the best snowboard halfpipe ever built, so it's going to be one of the best days that we've all ever had. Snowboarding is such a new sport, and every week it moves on in leaps and bounds. It's just really fun to be part of something that is changing so quickly, and to be one of the people who are changing it.'

Of course, anyone who saw her storm the 1985 Scottish Disco Championships at age 11 might have predicted that her penchant for tricks and twists would stand her in good stead for the thrills of halfpipe riding: 'I grew up skiing and disco dancing. I used to love getting glammed up in my disco outfit, getting on the floor for a boogie. It's the same when you're doing halfpipe.'

You get the feeling that her new vocation might not go out of fashion quite so dramatically as disco, and a gold medal in Salt Lake City might ensure that it is around for some time yet. cg

WEARSIDE STORY

The blood-and-thunder clashes of arch rivals Sunderland and Newcastle are the north-east's equivalents of the Old Firm derbies. Black Cats defender Jason McAteer tells Jeremy Butler he has his work cut out against the likes of Alan Shearer

REPUBLIC OF IRELAND INTERNATIONAL Jason McAteer has warned his club, Sunderland, not to get suckered into believing Alan Shearer is past his sell-by date when the Black Cats face arch rivals Newcastle this month. The goal machine may have retired from international duty, but McAteer insists Shearer is still lethal in the Premiership.

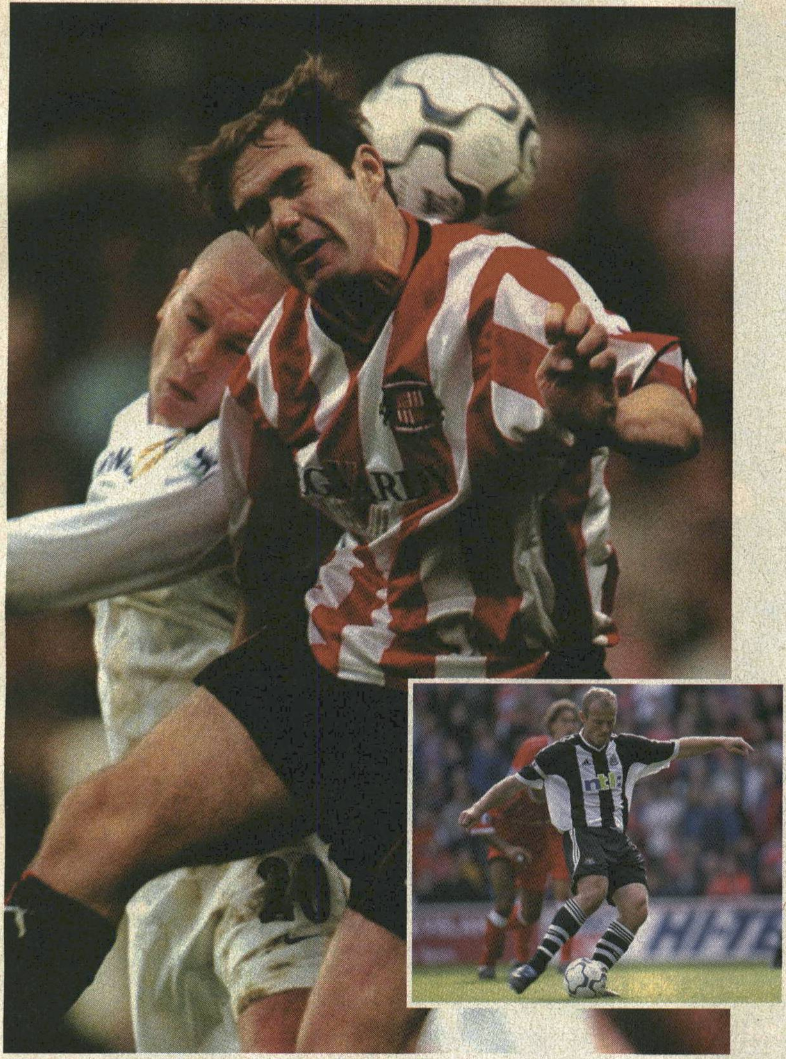
The former England captain has battled back from knee surgery to smash home goal after goal this term for the Magpies in their surprise push for the title. And McAteer for one has not been stunned at Shearer's return to form for his home-town club.

He says: 'I think they play on his international retirement thing to help take the pressure off him. The club say he's getting older and maybe can't get as many goals as he once did. But I don't believe that for a minute. Whether he's 21 or 37 Alan Shearer will always score goals.

'He is a quality striker and someone that you have to watch or he'll punish you.'

It's not just Shearer that McAteer fears could ruin Sunderland's day in one of football's most passionate derby clashes. He rates aging midfield duo Rob Lee and Gary Speed as crucial to Newcastle's success this season.

> ❛ Peter Reid knows how to give a rollicking and give someone a pat on the back at the same time. His tactics are also always spot on and he's changing with the game ❜



Above: Head hunter. McAteer rises to the challenge against Leeds United's Seth Johnson. Inset: Alan Shearer: 'Someone that you have to watch or he'll punish you'

'Rob and Gary drive the team on with their work in the middle of the park,' he adds. 'Without them Alan and Craig Bellamy wouldn't be getting the chances to stick goals away.'

He adds: 'I think Gary is very underrated in this country. He can nick a goal and put his foot in when he has to. And once he gets the ball he is clever enough to get the play going again.'

McAteer could almost be describing himself, and the battle between the duo will certainly prove fascinating viewing. The Republic of Ireland international was an instant hit at the Stadium of Light after his switch from Blackburn in October, and he believes the reason he has adapted so quickly is because of Sunderland's passionate fans.

'It's a lot like Liverpool here in the way people look forward to their football,' he says. 'When I was playing for Liverpool you felt nothing else but football mattered on Merseyside.

'The people also had a great sense of humour and community, and made you feel really wanted. I can see all of those traits here as well.'

McAteer was brought in along with midfield maestro and USA captain, Claudio Reyna, to boost a squad Peter Reid had earmarked for a European slot this season. It was a shrewd piece of business by Reid, of whom McAteer has nothing but praise.

He says: 'He has taken it from nothing to the edge of Europe in the space of three or four seasons. That shows just how good a manager he is. His style is perfect for the modern game as well.

'If we need to have a dietician or someone in to talk to the players, he'll sort it. But it's his man-management style I have been impressed with the most.

'He knows how to give a rollicking and give someone a pat on the back at the same time. Peter's tactics are also always spot on and he's changing with the game.

'People talk about big names for the Manchester United job, but in Peter we have someone who is already that good.' cg

ON THE SPOT

Newcastle won't expect the warmest of receptions at the Stadium of Light. But, after surviving on-pitch grenades in Iran, a few boo boys are unlikely to affect keeper Shay Given's game. Interview: Luke Nicoli

What's the most memorable match you've played in and why?
Qualifying for the World Cup with the Republic of Ireland in Iran recently. It was the most intimidating and hostile stadium I've ever played in, so to come away having secured our place in the finals was a wonderful feeling. Although we lost the leg 1-0, we went through on aggregate and I was delighted with my performances in both matches. What made the victory all the sweeter was the way we coped in the face of adversity. For instance, as the goalkeepers warmed up before the match, we had so-called smoke bombs thrown at us. When the smoke cleared, we discovered craters in the ground and we later discovered these missiles were, in fact, grenades! At the end of the match, some of the lads got back in the dressing room quickly, but I savoured every moment on the pitch.

Who's your footballing hero, and why?
I was a Celtic fan as a kid and always looked up to Packie Bonner, who was also the Republic of Ireland keeper at the time. It's been a real honour to follow in his footsteps. Another goalkeeper I greatly admire is Peter Schmeichel, who has been the best in the world in recent years. He is an immense figure and much of Manchester United's success in the Nineties was built on his foundations.

Which team did you support as a boy?
When I grew up in County Donegal, most boys supported Liverpool or Manchester United, but it was always Celtic for me. Unfortunately, it was at a time when Rangers were dominating everything in Scotland, but I was delighted to have a trial for the club, sign for them and again follow in Packie's footsteps. But I've always been fiercely ambitious and at the age of 18, when it didn't look as if I was going to get my break, Kenny Dalglish signed me for Blackburn Rovers and I haven't looked back.

What's the best piece of advice you've ever been given?
Last season, having signed a new contract with Newcastle, I was playing really well until I picked up a dead leg at Christmas and was forced to miss one game. I was fit for the next match, but Bobby Robson decided to stick with Steve Harper in goal and continued to do so until he got injured himself. This infuriated me and I put in a transfer request. I had a heated debate with the gaffer and he told me not to be so stupid. I backed down and, in hindsight, I was right to listen to him because things have gone so well since.

Newcastle have had an impressive season. Why have you done so well?
The manager can take much of the credit. For a man of his age [Robson's 69 this month], who has achieved so much in the game, he doesn't really need the pressure, but he keeps going because of his love for Newcastle, and his enthusiasm has rubbed off on all the players.

REGARDING HENDRIE

Former football wild child Lee Hendrie insists he has put his bad boy days behind him to concentrate on giving Aston Villa a season to remember. Interview: Luke Nicoli

IN PREVIOUS SEASONS, a trip to Manchester United would have probably seen the visiting team employing a rearguard action as the champions elect sought to consolidate their position at the top of the table.

Yet, in the most open Premiership season to date, United's guests this month, Aston Villa, are looking at the fixture as a springboard for their own ambitions.

Having already flirted with the top spot earlier in the campaign, John Gregory's side have shown they can compete with the big boys, and according to midfield schemer Lee Hendrie, they also have the strength to put together another decent run in the final third of the season.

'Although the Premiership title might be beyond us, there's no reason at all why we can't put a run together and get one of the Champions League spots,' he says. 'With four places up for grabs this season and with the league being so open, we have everything to play for. We are a massive club and have a squad now to be challenging, but we've got to get the consistency together which has been lacking on occasions this season.'

Certainly Villa's showing at the start of the season raised plenty of eyebrows as they brushed off the shackles of last season's inner turmoil. With the unsettled figures of Gareth Southgate and Ugo Ehiogu just a distant memory, Hendrie believes that the arrival of Hassan Kachloul, Mustapha Hadji and Olof Mellberg created a spirit that has been absent in previous seasons.

'Last season we had players wanting to leave and that definitely affected the atmosphere,' he adds. 'No disrespect to him, but we had a situation where our captain, Gareth Southgate, wanted to hand over the armband and that rocked everyone a bit.

'But this season has been different. Everyone's been pulling together and the new boys have helped create a different buzz on the training ground, which has been reflected in our results. When we hit the top it didn't surprise us, but the hardest thing is staying there. Still, when you add new players to the side, you will get inconsistencies, but I think we've now gelled better, so it's the time to show the fans what we're capable of.'

Victory against United would certainly be a shot in the arm to Villa's aspirations, as well as being sweet revenge for the teams' FA Cup clash at Villa Park last month, when Ferguson's side fought back from 2-0 down to emerge as 3-2 winners.

Following their own mid-season crisis, when it appeared that United were not the unstoppable titans of previous seasons, it's been business as usual for Sir Alex Ferguson's side, and Hendrie views the game as vital to the Midlanders' end-of-season hopes.

'They've had their problems this season, but in my eyes United are still the team to beat,' he adds. 'We don't have a bad record against them and we know how important a win would be.'

It's been over three years since Hendrie won his first and solitary England cap against the Czech Republic at Wembley, but he believes his consistent form can also help him sneak in the back door of Sven-Göran Eriksson's World Cup squad.

It seems the former football bad boy is taking a more thoughtful and studied approach to his game. Hendrie has already experienced peaks and troughs, the likes of which many of his contemporaries won't encounter in their entire careers. A Premier League debut at 18 and a Wembley bow within three years were the stuff of dreams. Except these dreams became nightmares when Hendrie was sent off in said Premiership debut and was slapped with an international ban after a drinking curfew was broken during the European Under-21 championships in Slovakia and a high-speed crash in his Porsche.

But a heart-to-heart with Villa boss Gregory finally brought the 24-year-old down to earth and proved to be the turning point in his career.

'The England business was a stupid thing that happened, something I regret doing, but you learn from your mistakes' he says. 'The gaffer gave me an ultimatum. He told me to sort myself out or he would have to find another midfielder.

'He made me aware of my responsibilities, to my young family and my team-mates, and it was a wake-up call that I'm appreciative of.' cg

NFL SUPER BOWL XXXVI

Sky Sports 1

Sunday 3rd, 10.30pm

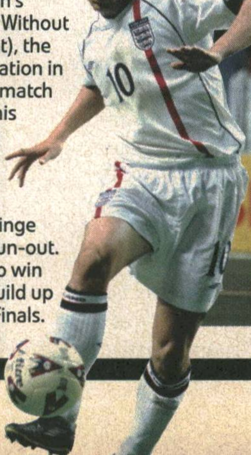
Without a dominant team during the last few seasons, the Super Bowl has been almost impossible to predict. However, the parity of the teams has led to some classic encounters. Two seasons ago there was a last-gasp win by the St Louis Rams, who only confirmed their victory on the very final play of the game. Last season, the surprising Baltimore Ravens won with a great defence.

▼ HOLLAND V ENGLAND

Sky Sports 2

Wednesday 13th, 7.00pm

The countdown has begun for the World Cup and the warm-up games start in earnest with the Dutch providing a tough test for Sven-Göran Eriksson's resurgent England. Without Michael Owen (right), the team lacked penetration in the final qualifying match against Greece, so his involvement will be crucial. There are always a couple of squad places to fight for, so some fringe players may get a run-out. England will want to win this game well to build up confidence for the Finals.



▼ NEW ZEALAND V ENGLAND

Sky Sports 2 From Tuesday 12th, 12.30am

New Zealand are a fine example of a cricket team of modest talent that regularly punches above its weight, especially in One-Day Internationals. With world-class all-rounders in Chris Harris and Chris Cairns, the Kiwis can beat everyone from the Aussies downwards in a 50-over contest. So Nasser Hussain (below) and his men will do well to treat this match and the series with due respect and hope Andrew Flintoff confirms himself as England's own all-round winning weapon.

▲ ATP DUBAI

British Eurosport

Monday 25th, 3.00pm

This could finally be Tim Henman's (above) big year. With coach Larry Stefanki fully installed and a good start to the season behind him, Tim once again has the tennis world at his feet. A quarter-finalist in Dubai in 1999, Tim is comfortable with his surroundings in the United Arab Emirates and will start the tournament among the favourites. Last season, Spain's Juan Carlos Ferrero defeated Russia's Marat Safin in the final.

▲ SIX NATIONS: ENGLAND V IRELAND

Sky Sports 2

Saturday 16th, 1.30pm

Revenge is on the agenda for England, who were so bitterly disappointed with their loss to the Irish at Landsdowne Road last autumn. England had already secured the Six Nations championship, but needed the win for a Grand Slam. They failed to win that last match, just like in the previous two seasons when Scotland and Wales had been the stumbling blocks. Jonny Wilkinson (above) and company are likely to be at their meanest and most clinical for this match at Twickenham.

An Unbelievable Golfing Breakthrough

The New Pro-Golf Range Finder could give you the biggest improvement to your game you ever dreamed of!

You'll never have to guess the distance of the hole, or guess what iron to use, or drop into that hidden bunker again, saving you valuable shots every game

An incredible golfing breakthough. The lightweight, compact Pro-Golf Range Finder accurately tells you how far away the hole is. Is it 160 yards? 200? 240? There will be no more guessing. It measures the distance from the bottom to the top of the flag, and immediately tells you the accurate distance. No more guessing what iron to use.

At its heart is a powerful 8 x magnification precision telescope. It means you see the green and flag with the view of 25 yards, when you're standing 200 yards away! This allows you to choose the best angle to attack the green, missing hidden (to the naked eye) obstacles, and saving 1 perhaps 2 shots per hole.

Taking America by storm no golfer today should be playing without this incredible piece of equipment. It has quality stamped all over it, from the precision optics, to the rugged stainless steel and shock-proof silicon construction, right through to the beautiful presentation case in which it comes.

Be the talk of the clubhouse, place your order today. At just £39.95 you'll have your money's worth after just one round. Plus, if you buy two we offer you a further discount on the second range finder of £10.

Please fill in the coupon or call our friendly orderline number below. We are open from 8.30am to 9pm Mon-Sun. We accept Mastercard, VISA, Switch or cheque. Please remember if you are not entirely satisfied with any goods we offer you a full 30-days refund guarantee.*

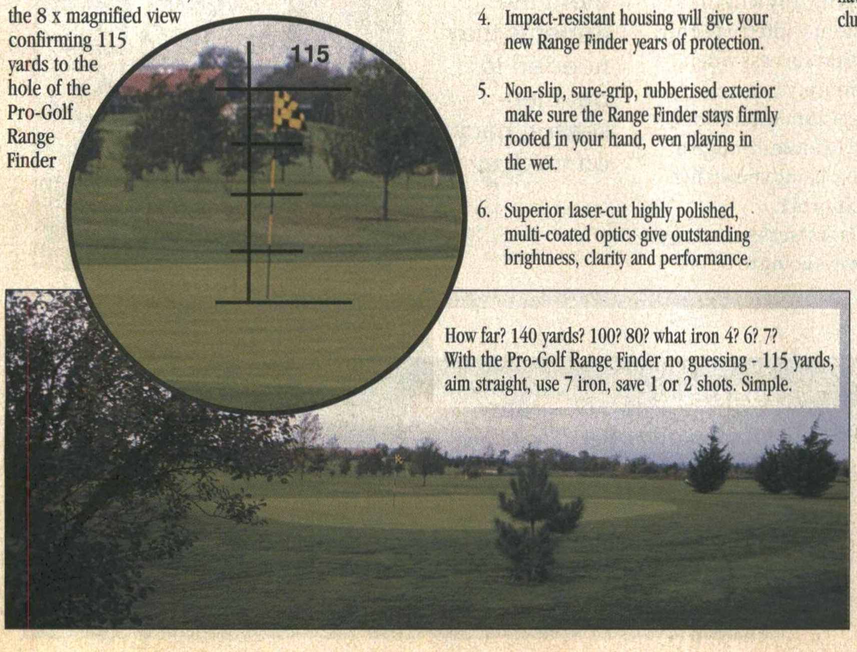
THE GOLF SCOPE
THE GOLF SCOPE

At just 4-inches long, it'll fit comfortable around your neck or easily in any pocket.

11 reasons why every golfer should own a Pro-Golf Range Finder

1. Stop guessing the distance to the hole. The Range Finder accurately tells you.
2. You'll always be able to select the right iron, saving 1-2 shots per hole.
3. At less than 4-inches it'll slip into any pocket with ease.
4. Impact-resistant housing will give your new Range Finder years of protection.
5. Non-slip, sure-grip, rubberised exterior make sure the Range Finder stays firmly rooted in your hand, even playing in the wet.
6. Superior laser-cut highly polished, multi-coated optics give outstanding brightness, clarity and performance.
7. Your new scores will be the talk of the club house, and your golfing pals will soon want their own Range Finder.
8. With the extremely powerful 8 x magnification you'll spot hidden bunkers and obstacles not possible with the human eye, allowing you to pick the best route to the green, saving valuable shots.
9. The new Pro-Golf Range Finder allows you to concentrate on your swing not having to guess distances, clubs or the right line.
10. In poor weather it can be almost impossible to accurately judge the distance to the hole. The Range Finder tells you accurately whatever the conditions.
11. Taking the US golfing world by storm, no serious golfer should be without a Pro-Golf Range Finder in his armoury.

The normal view below, and the 8 x magnified view confirming 115 yards to the hole of the Pro-Golf Range Finder



How far? 140 yards? 100? 80? what iron 4? 6? 7? With the Pro-Golf Range Finder no guessing - 115 yards, aim straight, use 7 iron, save 1 or 2 shots. Simple.

ALAN CURBISHLEY

A visit from Manchester United still has the power to strike fear into many teams. But it's also a fixture that can inspire the home side to raise their game like no other, often to turn in a season-best performance. Illustration: Chris Hogg

We face Manchester United at The Valley this month live on pay-per-view – that's the one of the first games we all look for when the fixtures are announced at the start of the season.

Sir Alex Ferguson knows every side that hosts Man U will raise their performance and step up a level in terms of their pace and the atmosphere around the ground. When United play away, everyone tries to beat them. On the other hand, as Arsenal manager Arsène Wenger has complained, teams rarely go to Old Trafford and play to win. But then the teams are few indeed who can deal with Manchester United at their best; you've got to hope to catch them on an off-day, and even then you've still got to play to your utmost ability.

United may have suffered disruption to their defence over the last couple of seasons – they've replaced their keeper and Jaap Stam has left – but their real strength lies in the fact that they have so many players who can score goals. And I think people writing off Manchester United at the start of this campaign simply gave them the impetus they needed to get their season back on track. Alex isn't afraid to criticise his players when it's necessary, but when the press started in on them, too, that was the spur he was waiting for, and his players responded just the way he wanted them to – by winning games.

It's easy for people to say, 'Well, Ferguson is in charge of the biggest, richest club, with the largest fan base, and that's why he's successful'. But Ferguson has managed Manchester United in the best way possible: he's created a fabulous team by bringing the kids through, and without overspending (in fact, other managers in the Premiership have spent a lot more money than him), and he's also managed to improve the stadium as he's gone along.

He's built a great club and he'll be leaving it in great shape when he retires at the end of the season.

But what about his successor? It will certainly be a formidable task to follow in Ferguson's footsteps. It's obvious that the new manager must be someone with an incredible amount of experience, and at Champions League level, because that's where they expect to be playing every year. And he would have to be mentally strong, because there's always the danger that he could be held responsible for breaking United's 'spell'. After all, nothing lasts forever. The dominance enjoyed by the great Liverpool sides of the Seventies and Eighties eventually came to an end, and it took them a while to get back in the running again.

It's very difficult to maintain consistent success for any length of time, and everyone at United will only truly appreciate that success when it's not there anymore.

But before we get to take on Man U, our game against Middlesbrough at the Riverside is also being shown live, this time on Sky Sports 1.

Steve McLaren's first season in charge of the club was always going to be one of consolidation. Of course, it's great if you end up in the top six, but, really, his priority would be to embed his ideas in the club and to keep them in the Premiership. The main problem that he's had is that he's not been allowed to bring in as many players as he would have liked. But if Middlesbrough do stay up, he can then set about making changes and move on from there. I think the fact that they have had it tough has engendered a real team spirit, with the players fighting for a common cause.

While I'm pleased that Charlton have two televised games in one month, I am less happy about the distribution of the TV money. There is a genuine case to be made for having more teams represented on cable. Man United can make more in a week in TV revenue than we make all year, yet up until this month, we've had just three games televised: the home matches against Fulham, West Ham and Aston Villa. It always seems to be the top six clubs that get all the coverage and it's a bias the other 14 clubs are annoyed about.

The games between the other teams are often more exciting, anyway. That West Ham game, for instance, was a 4-4 thriller and arguably rates as one of the best games seen on Sky this season.

I hope we're on television a lot more, because a club of our size could do with the extra revenue.

Why pay BT £10.50 a month for telephone line rental when it's already part of the ntl:home service?

Every month you're probably handing BT £10.50 for telephone line rental. That adds up to £126 a year. And it's money you don't need to spend.

That's because the cable TV service you currently get with ntl:home includes line rental for our own telephone service. So, switch your phone to us and you could be making an immediate saving. Plus you get:

- National calls at local rates. So whether you're phoning the other end of the street or the other end of the country you'll pay the same for your call.*
- Low cost international calls to 30 destinations from just 5p per minute with our International Call Plan (which costs just £2 per month).
- Free cable to cable talk time to other ntl:home phone customers in your local area. 6pm to 8am weekdays and all weekend. All you pay is the 4.9p connection charge.†

All calls are subject to a 4.9p connection charge.

It's easy to switch and save

It's easy to switch to the ntl:home Telephone service. There's a one-off installation fee of £50 to connect your phone to your cable line. And for £20, in certain areas, we can even transfer your existing BT number to us. But remember you can recoup that money in just a few months.
